2*h*. ●Simon Cyprian Douglas, b. 26 Sept. 1965.

*A 16th century pedigree, vouched for by the Parson of Auchterderran (a son of the 3rd Laird of Balmuto) stated that the Boswells acquired two third-parts of Balmuto from the Ogilvies and Cunninghams (who m. co-heirs of Sir John Glen), and the remaining third part through marriage with the other co-heir. This lady, Christian Glen, is known to have had three husbands, David Ogilvie of Balmuto, David [illegible] and David Stewart of the Gloam; but there is no trace of the acquisition of her third-part, nor heirship through her. Circumstances suggest that Sir William Boswell may have been her 1st husband under a marriage settlement whereby the fee of her third-part of Balmuto, failing issue of the marriage, devolved on his heirs.

THE MOULTRIES.

PART I.

[From a sketch prepared in 1878 by the Rev. Gerard Moultrie of South Leigh Vicarage, Oxfordshire, England, for Peter Gourdin, Esq., of St. John's Parish, Berkeley County, South Carolina.]

The Moultries of Scotland, Lairds of Seafield, Markinch & Roscobie whose name is also spelled in the old manuscripts and charters, "Moutrays", Mowtrays" "Moultreres" and "Moultrays" had as their family seat the Tower of Seafield on the Firth of Forth near Edinburgh, Scotland, which estate was confirmed to Richart Moultrare by Royal Charter in 1443.

Adam de Multrere swore fealty to King Edward I. at Berwick-on-Tweed, with the other Scottish gentry in A. D. 1292.

His name occurs, appended with his seal, as witness to a deed for transfer of land in "Nurbiggying" to the abbot & convent of S. Mary Newbottle in 1331. He lived in or near Edinburgh probably on Moutray Hill, the name of the eminence at the East end of Prince's Street (outside the old city walls) now occupied by the Register House, immediately below Calton Hill. This would be near the estate & old turreted mansion of Restalrig in the direction of Holyrood Palace & would be nearly opposite Seafield Tower which stands visible from it on the other side of the Firth of Forth (5 miles wide) in Fife.

Robert Multrare received in 1305 a Royal charter from David II., son of the Bruce, granting him lands in the barony of Lastalryk (Restalrig) which had been confiscated for treason from John Coltus their late possessor.

RICHARD MULTRARE of Seafield Tower & Markinch received a Royal charter confirming to him the Seafield & Markinch lands in 1443. This is the earliest mention of the family as connected with these estates so far as have yet been discovered. Mariota Multrare had the lands of Petdorming in Fife settled upon her on her marriage in 1449 with John Strang of Balcaskie in Fife.

JOHN MULTRARE succeeded his father Richard in the Seafield & Markinch estates in 1469. Little is known of him except that his wife's name was Gelis ("Heloise"). His name appears as Commissioner (representative of the Lesser Barons & Burgesses) in the Scottish Parliament of James III. from A. D. 1469-1478.

THOMAS MULTRARE succeeded his father John in the estate circ. 1478. In 1481 he married, by dispensation, Katherine Bosville (Boswell) of Balmuto near Seafield. She was fifth daughter of David Boseville "a man" as Douglas writes, "of good parts & great strength of body, who died at an advanced age about A. D. 1490. He was a lineal descendant of Sieur Robert de Boseville, a man of high rank in the Court of King William the Lion, who succeeded to the throne of Scotland in A. D. 1165. The first of the Bosevilles on record accompanied William the Conqueror from Normandy & commanded a division of the Norman army at the Battle of Hastings. Thomas Multrare was a fierce & haughty man, constantly at feud with his neighbors e. g. on the 5th of February 1484 he was invited to surrender his person unto custody at Blackness Castle, the state prison on the Firth of Forth "for the great offence done agane our soverane Lordis hienes be Thomas Multrare in the distrubling of a venerable fader in God the Abbott of Dumfermling". Dumfermline was the Westminister Abbey of Scotland & its Abbott was a very august personage indeed, occupying a position of dignity as high relatively as that in England of the Dean of Westminister. The "disturbling" of such an Ecclesiastic was a daring operation, even by a powerful noble. Multrare was to surrender within eight days: but he does not appear to have paid any notice of any kind to the invitation. It was the turbulent period of Scottish history when the barons headed by Archibald Douglass (surnamed from the deed "Bell-the-Cat"), hung from the parapet of Launderbridge the unpopular favourites of the King, Cochrane, Torphicken & the others, by the ropes of their tents; in spite of the earnest appeal of Cochrane that a gentleman of his dignity might be accommodated with a silken halter instead of coarse & villainous hemp. The royal power fell into contempt for some time after this, & there was but little of law & order in the kingdom. Of this state of things the laird of Seafield no doubt availed himself.

David Boseville, Multrare's father-in-law, had married Elizabeth daughter of Sir John Melville. His eldest daughter (Katherine Multrare's sister) married Sir Robert Douglass of Lochleven progenitor to the Earls of Morton.

JOHN MULTRARE succeeded his father Thomas, in 1500. After holding the estates of Seafield & Markinch for four years he died, leaving two sons, John & Richard.

JOHN MULTRARE inherited the estates in 1504. He married the 5th daughter of Sir Alexander Stewart of Garlies (ancestor to the present Earl of Galloway) who fell at Flodden field among the nobles who fell fighting round the body of the King. Her mother Elizabeth was daughter to Alexander Kennedy of Blairquhan. Multrare's wife was one of 16 daughters, all of whom married!!! There would be no failure of Scotch cousins in our family if one only knew where to look for them. Richard Multrare his younger brother had in 1527, a lawsuit with the Earl of Glammis his neighbour. Glammis Castle (of which not

A playwright herself, Mary Brown had the rewarding experience of seeing one of her own plays produced at a later festival. Her death a few years ago while visiting a relative overseas extinguished a flame that had illuminated many corners of social and cultural life in the Stewartry.

Meeting interesting people is one of the few rewards that come the way of a local newspaper editor, remembering them is one of the sweet sorrows of retirement.

The Return

Faintly borne on a westering breeze
Scents and sounds the senses tease,
The island's voice in siren lays
Whispers " Return " in a thousand ways.

To hear again the rock-crash sea,
The west wind whipping the rowan tree;
White sea birds that mill and squall,
And the thunderous roar of the waterfall;
The drum of snipe on warm, still air,
Ascending silence like a prayer;
Shearwaters' moans on moonless nights,
And far-off bleats from grassy heights;
Soft Gaelic talk and Gaelic song,
Gaelic laughter warm and strong
To ride the whisky-laden air,
And pipes to dance away all care.

The soaking, salty bow-wave plumes;
On the nearing shore the sea crash spumes,
And, travel-weary on the pier,
With cartons, mailbag, crates of beer,
All restless longings hush and still
To catch the whisper from the hill,
Echoing all that's in your phrase —
Welcome in a thousand ways.

Barony church at Auchinleck, Ayrshire, showing the Boswell Mausoleum in the centre beside the ruined kirk.

Remembering Boswell

Dorothy Dunbar

THE Auchinleck Boswell Society was founded in 1970 by three men, John McCulloch, John Paterson and Gordon Hoyle. Mr McCulloch, who has since died, was station-master at Auchinleck for many years; John Paterson, then session clerk of Barony Kirk; Gordon Hoyle is a Yorkshireman who settled in Auchinleck several years ago. He and his wife, who is a native of the town, now run a flourishing business there.

As the three friends talked over the history of the parish and surrounding area, they came to the conclusion that the resting place of the biographer of Dr Samuel Johnson merited a little more attention than it was receiving.

James Boswell, unlike that other Ayrshire lad, Robert Burns, was born with the proverbial silver spoon in his mouth. His father built what is still referred to as " Affleck Big Hoose." (The old pronunciation of Auchinleck). This mansion, an imposing Georgian building at the head of a three-mile-long avenue of trees leading down to the churchyard, was the third house to stand on the site. The avenue of trees is called the Via Sacra. In the churchyard stands the modern Barony Church, and near it the old kirk in which the Boswell family worshipped for centuries.

Mr Paterson suggested to his kirk session that the old building should be handed over to the newly-formed Auchinleck Boswell Society, and this was agreed. The old kirk and the Boswell family Mausoleum attached to it were in a pretty ruinous condition, and the new society lost no time in launching an appeal for funds to turn the ruins into a Museum of Boswelliana.

Money began to come in from people bearing the name Boswell, and from wellwishers interested in James Boswell. Joyce, Lady Talbot De Malahide, kindly donated the Mausoleum, to the society and the work was begun. The walls were cleaned up; the Boswell crest on the back wall was restored to its original sharpness; the inside walls and the stair down to the vault where lie the remains of the biographer and his immediate family were made safe and lighting installed.

Attention was then turned to the old kirk. The walls, a crow-stepped gable and the bell-tower with its weather vane dating from 1641, have been rebuilt. The other gable, the floor and the roof remain to be done before the mounting accumulation of Boswell family relics can be safely housed inside.

In October the Society received a Government-backed grant through the job creation scheme run by the Manpower Services Commission. This will provide a year's work for three skilled men and six unskilled. This should complete the task the Society have set themselves.

The Boswell Society has about one hundred and sixty members, fifty per cent. of whom are in America and other parts of the world.

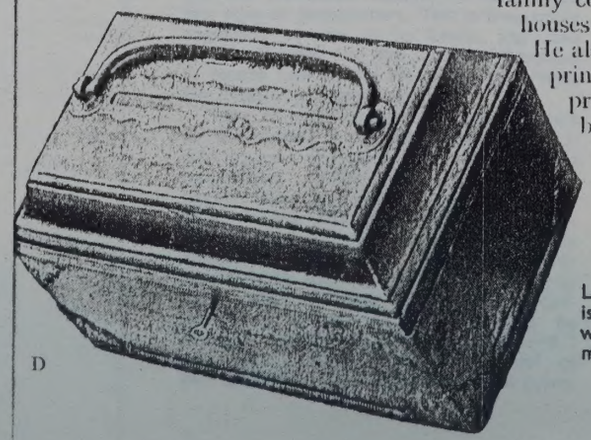
They all receive a newsletter twice a year telling them how the building is progressing, and commenting on any Boswelliana which has turned up or has been gifted to the society. An annual dinner takes place in the Royal Hotel, Cumnock, each autumn. This year it was held on August 20, the date on which Dr Johnson set out from Edinburgh with James Boswell on their tour to the Hebrides. The address was given by this year's president, Mr James Irvine Fortescue, who spoke about the Balnuto Boswells, the last of whom, Miss Ella Susannah, died in 1953.

Among the family relics which will eventually be housed in the museum is a beautiful punch bowl made in Canton by order of a certain Bruce Boswell, who was the mate on the Lord Mansfield, an East Indiaman. Bruce Boswell brought it home as a present for his father, who was born in 1710 and was a physician in Edinburgh. The bowl is beautifully decorated with the family crest, and details of the doctor's sons and daughters.

Inside the bowl on the bottom is inscribed the following toast:

Here's tae ye,
Weel may ye a' be,
Ill may ye never see.
Here's tae yer rouce tree.
God bless the king hye,
Our absent friends and companie.



Lord Auchinleck's brief box is one of the Boswell relics which will be housed in the museum.

The crow-stepped gable and bell tower of the old kirk which have been restored by the Boswell Society. The weather vane dates from 1641.

There is a cabinet which belonged to the biographer, and a brief-box which belonged to Lord Auchinleck, his father, who was a judge of the Court of Session in Edinburgh. Among several paintings there is one of a Bruce Boswell, and another of his wife, both unsigned but believed to have been painted by Allan Ramsay.

Mr Hoyle showed me a cupboard full of books gifted by various people, among them a second edition of Boswell's Tour to the Hebrides, and a ninth edition of Dr Johnson's dictionary. There is a burgess ticket dated 1771 and belonging to a John Boswell, who was a writer at Ayr, and there is a family tree showing the Boswell family connections to all the Royal houses of Europe starting at 1066. He also showed me a programme printed on silk for what was probably one of the last balls to be held at Auchinleck House in 1860, when the music was provided by Auchinleck House, built by Boswell's father, Lord Auchinleck. The house is empty at present.

" Lady James Boswell's Silver Band under the direction of Mr Agnew, bandmaster, Queen's Own R.R.G.Y.C."

The contents of Malahide Castle in Ireland came up for sale this year and Mr Hoyle is hopeful that some more relics of the family may come the way of the society. Boswell's great-grand-daughter married Lord Talbot de Malahide and the castle was found some years ago, to be a treasure-house of Boswell papers and manuscripts.

All the articles, books and manuscripts are stored in the village at the moment, awaiting transfer to the completed museum.

It may not be widely known that there is a connection between Auchinleck and Alloway, that haunt of all Burns lovers. It was a son of James Boswell, the biographer, who first had the idea of building a monument at Alloway as a memorial to Burns. He gathered the support of a few friends and the project was begun several years after the death of the Bard.

This particular Boswell, Sir Alexander, was himself a poet, and he and his friends held what may have been the first Burns Supper to launch their project in 1820. Unfortunately, Sir Alexander was killed in the second-last duel fought in Scotland just before the monument was finished, so he never saw the completion of his dream.

All going well, and in spite of inflation and all the other monetary ills, the old kirk at Auchinleck will one day open as a place of pilgrimage for all who value our past history and wish to see the best of it preserved.

Now, Where Could That Be?

Words and Places

IAN A. FRASER

Mallaig.

READERS must forgive me for referring again to the name Blawearie (see " Words and Places " for October and November), but it has attracted a good deal of correspondence. Mr N. Davidson of Carryduff, near Belfast, and Mr Alex. Weir of Dumbarton, have reminded me that there is a place of that name situated on the A6089 just north of Gordon in Berwickshire, and another near Hawick, on the road between Ashkirk and Roberton.

Recently I gave a lecture to a very knowledgeable antiquarian society in the Borders, where the subject of popular names for farms came up in discussion. Names like Blinkbonny, Unthank, Cauldshiels and several others were mentioned, all of which referred to the outlook, climate or fertility of farm lands. Blawearie was described by one member of my audience as a place where the wind blew constantly, so that it was a wearying place to live. This is a very likely answer, but it still doesn't provide a location for Blawearie in Ayrshire! However, my grateful thanks to those readers who helped with this query.

An Australian reader provides us with our next query. Mr John MacDonald, of Canterbury, Victoria, who is a native of Kiltearn in Ross-shire, wishes to know why so many places in the West Highlands have names ending in -nish, like Vaternish, Trotternish, Rossinish, Duirinish, and so on. All of these are, of course, Norse names, and the -nish suffix denotes the Old Norse nes, cape or promontory. This is frequently anglicised to ness as in Lewis, and also occurs all along the East Coast of Scotland in names like Girdle Ness, Buddon Ness, Fife Ness and Barns Ness.

Many of the names in Mr MacDonald's list are located in the Isle of Skye, which is split up by a number of long sea lochs, the intervening peninsulas almost invariably having names ending in -nish. Duirnish is O.N. dyr-nes, deer-cape; Ushinish is husa-nes, house-cape; and Rossinish is probably hrossa-nes, horse-cape. Incidentally, Mr MacDonald's native Kiltearn was Kiltierny 1227, and Keltyern 1296, giving Cill-tighearn, " Lord's kirk." This can be either " church dedicated to the Lord," or perhaps from some early chief of the Clan Munro having been buried there.

Another Ross-shire derivation, which has been requested by Mr James Young, of Fearn, Ross-shire, is Tarrel. This does not sound as if it is of Gaelic origin, but it is, like Kiltearn, a name of long standing, as we have early spellings for it—Tarale 1373, and Tarall 1561. It is, however, definitely a Gaelic name, probably from tar, " across " or " athwart," and the obsolete word ail, " cliff " or " rock," so that the full derivation is " over-cliff," a very suitable name, since there are fairly high cliffs in the vicinity.

Miss Mary Dilby, of Edinburgh, comes from Mallaig, and wants to know the derivation of this place-name on the West Coast of Inverness-shire. There's a humorous popular etymology for this name, Miss Dilby tells me. An old man was supposed to have got his foot stuck in a bog, and, being unable to move, cried, " Ma leg! Ma leg!" Considering when Mallaig was first settled, the bodach's cries should have been in Gaelic, or perhaps even in Old Norse, which makes the above story ridiculous in the extreme! The true derivation is, however, obscure. It's certainly Norse, as the -aig ending (Norse vikn, bay) testifies. But the first element could be one of several Old Norse words, possibly mala, a pebbly beach. The lack of early forms of the name hinders us in this instance.

* * * * *

This is the last article in the present series of " Words and Places." Naturally, there have been many questions on place-names which have remained unanswered, as the study is fraught with traps for the unwary, and full of misleading theories. Scotland's place-names are highly complex compared with neighbouring countries, but this is part of their attraction.

Before I write finis, may I take this opportunity to thank all those readers who have written to me over the past six years. I've made many friends, and hopefully, few enemies! To those of you who have written recently, and whose letters I've been unable to answer in " Words and Places," don't despair—I'll try to answer all your queries by post in the next few weeks. But for now, as they say in Gaelic, Beannachd leibh, agus Bliadhna Mhath Ur!

From April 30 to May 14 1977, Scotland will be the setting for an International Gathering of the Clans.

It will be a major international event, emphasising the unique way in which the Scottish clan and family system has been maintained at home and in every corner of the globe.

The first week will concentrate in the historic Capital City of Edinburgh and the surrounding Lothian Region. There will be a wide selection of traditionally Scottish events, including Highland games, piping, exhibitions, pageants, displays, dramas, banquets, and balls.

The opening Concert in Edinburgh's Usher Hall will be a Fiddlers' Rally featuring traditional reel and strathspey music. There will be major performances of Scottish and Gaelic music. And, of course, the Usher Hall will also be the setting for an evening of pipes and drums, individual and group piping, and demonstrations of Highland Dancing.

A unique collection of tartans by the Scottish Tartans Society will be on display at historic Hopetoun House which will also be the setting for one of the modern Scottish Fashion Shows. The University of Edinburgh has arranged a series of historical lectures and an all-day conference which will have as its theme "From the Lone Shieling – the Dispersal of a Society".

At Clan report centres, clansmen will be able to establish contact with fellow clan members, and with other clans.

Edinburgh's handsome Assembly Rooms in the City Centre will serve as a club and meeting place during the first week.

During the second week, clansmen and their families will disperse to clan and home territories, where there will be many events for participants and spectators.

Throughout Scotland from the Borders to the Highlands and the far north preparations are being made to provide a memorable Caledonian welcome.

The two-week Gathering will be an occasion of truly international significance to all who have an affection for Scotland and its traditions.

Its main objective is to strengthen family ties, foster a greater interest in Scotland's past and present, and develop ways in which the ethnic links between the Scots at home and abroad can be reinforced.

To you we extend Ceud Mile Failte, a hundred thousand welcomes, with the sincere hope that you will join us in Scotland in Spring 1977.

THE ORIGINS OF SOME ANGLO-NORMAN FAMILIES

BY

THE LATE LEWIS C. LOYD

AND EDITED BY

CHARLES TRAVIS CLAY

AND

the family is brought into still closer connexion with Clères by the fact that a family of that name held land of it in cos. York and Lincoln.[1] On a farm not far from the church of Bosc-le-Hard was the castle.[2]

BOSCHERVILLE.

Boscherville: Eure, arr. Pont-Audemer, cant. Bourgtheroulde.

In 1135 Henry de Boskerville held three knights' fees of Ferrers; in 1166 they were held by his son John; and in 1135 William de Boskerville held three knights' fees of Ferrers, one of which was held in 1166 by his son Ralf.[3] An 'aveu' for the barony of Ferrières of 1604 shows that there was held of it 'un plain fief de haubert' in the parish of Boscherville called 'le fief de Boscherville'[4]; the identity with this Boscherville is established by the fact that it adjoins Bourgtheroulde, where the lords of Ferrières had an important interest in the middle ages.[5] It is to be noted that these facts, in addition to establishing the provenance of the under-tenants of 1135, carry back the connexion of the lords of Ferrières with Boscherville to the early twelfth century and probably to the days of Henry de Ferrers, the Domesday tenant-in-chief.

BOSVILLE, BOESEVILLA, ETC.

Beuzeville-la-Giffard: Seine-Inf., arr. Dieppe, cant. Bellencombre, comm. Beaumont-le-Hareng.

At some date before 1159 Elias de Boesevilla gave the church of Harthill, co. York, to Lewes priory[6]; and between 1159 and 1164 he gave all his land in Harthill to Reginald de Warenne to hold of him as he and his father Hugh had held it of earl de Warenne.[7] In the twelfth and thirteenth centuries Beuzeville appears as 'Boesevilla' and 'Bosavilla.' It is only 5½ kil. S of Bellencombre, the caput of the Warenne honour in Normandy, and it is contiguous to Grigneuzeville and Bracquetuit, both Warenne fiefs.[8] When it is added that there does not appear to be any other place of a similar name in the Warenne sphere of influence the identification seems a safe one.

BRAIBOUE, BRAIBOF.

Brébeuf: Calvados, arr. Caen, cant. Evrecy, comm. Vacogne.

In 1086 Hugh de Braiboue held Wateringbury (Otrinberge), Kent, of Odo bishop of Bayeux.[9] Brébeuf was a fief in the commune of Vacogne. It is not mentioned in the Bayeux Inquest of 1133, but a number of places nearby appear there as fiefs of the bishop of Bayeux; e.g. Bougy

When it is added that there does not appear to be any other place of a similar name in the Warenne sphere"

THE MOULTRIES.

PART I.

[From a sketch prepared in 1878 by the Rev. Gerard Moultrie of th Leigh Vicarage, Oxfordshire, England, for Peter Gourdin, Esq., t. John's Parish, Berkeley County, South Carolina.]

The Moultries of Scotland, Lairds of Seafield, Markinch Roscobie whose name is also spelled in the old manu-pts and charters, "Moutrays", Mowtrays" "Moultreres" "Moultrays" had as their family seat the Tower of field on the Firth of Forth near Edinburgh, Scotland, ch estate was confirmed to Richart Moultrare by Royal rter in 1443.

ADAM DE MULTRERE swore fealty to King Edward I. at wick-on-Tweed, with the other Scottish gentry in A. D. 2.

His name occurs, appended with his seal, as witness to a for transfer of land in "Nurbiggying" to the abbot & vent of S. Mary Newbottle in 1331. He lived in or near nburgh probably on Moutray Hill, the name of the emi-ce at the East end of Prince's Street (outside the old walls) now occupied by the Register House, immedi-y below Calton Hill. This would be near the estate & turreted mansion of Restalrig in the direction of Holy-d Palace & would be nearly opposite Seafield Tower ch stands visible from it on the other side of the Firth Forth (5 miles wide) in Fife.

OBERT MULTRARE received in 1365 a Royal charter from id II., son of the Bruce, granting him lands in the barony Lastalryk (Restalrig) which had been confiscated for son from John Coltus their late possessor.

RICHARD MULTRARE of Seafield Tower & Markinch received a Royal charter confirming to him the Seafield & Markinch lands in 1443. This is the earliest mention of the family as connected with these estates so far as have yet been discovered. Mariota Multrare had the lands of Petdorming in Fife settled upon her on her marriage in 1449 with John Strang of Balcaskie—in Fife.

JOHN MULTRARE succeeded his father Richard in the Seafield & Markinch estates in 1469. Little is known of him except that his wife's name was Gelis ("Heloise"). His name appears as Commissioner (representative of the Lesser Barons & Burgesses) in the Scottish Parliament of James III. from A. D. 1469-1478.

THOMAS MULTRARE succeeded his father John in the estate circ. 1478. In 1481 he married, by dispensation, Katherine Bosville (Boswell) of Balmuto near Seafield. She was fifth daughter of David Boseville "a man" as Douglas writes, "of good parts & great strength of body, who died at an advanced age about A. D. 1490. He was a lineal descendant of Sieur Robert de Boseville, a man of high rank in the Court of King William the Lion, who succeeded to the throne of Scotland in A. D. 1165. The first of the Bosevilles on record accompanied William the Conqueror from Normandy & commanded a division of the Norman army at the Battle of Hastings. Thomas Multrare was a fierce & haughty man, constantly at feud with his neighbors e. g. on the 5th of February 1484 he was invited to surrender his person unto custody at Blackness Castle, the state prison on the Firth of Forth "for the great offence done agane our soverane Lordis hienes be Thomas Multrare in the distrubling of a venerable fader in God the Abbott of Dumfermling". Dumfermline was the Westminister Abbey of Scotland & its Abbott was a very august personage indeed, occupying a position of dignity as high relatively as that in England of the Dean of Westminister. The "distrubling" of such an Ecclesiastic was a daring operation, even by a powerful noble. Multrare was to surrender within eight days; but he does not appear to have paid any notice of any kind to the invitation. It was the turbulent period of Scottish history when the barons headed by Archibald Douglass (surnamed from the deed "Bell-the-Cat"), hung from the parapet of Launderbridge the unpopular favourites of the King, Cochrane, Torphicken & the others, by the ropes of their tents; in spite of the earnest appeal of Cochrane that a gentleman of his dignity might be accommodated with a silken halter, instead of coarse & villainous hemp. The royal power fell into contempt for some time after this, & there was but little of law & order in the kingdom. Of this state of things the laird of Seafield no doubt availed himself.

David Boseville, Multrare's father-in-law, had married Elizabeth daughter of Sir John Melville. His eldest daughter (Katherine Multrare's sister) married Sir Robert Douglass of Lochleven progenitor to the Earls of Morton.

JOHN MULTRARE succeeded his father Thomas, in 1500. After holding the estates of Seafield & Markinch for four years he died, leaving two sons, John & Richard.

JOHN MULTRARE inherited the estates in 1504. He married the 5th daughter of Sir Alexander Stewart of Garlies (ancestor to the present Earl of Galloway) who fell at Flodden-field among the nobles who fell fighting round the body of the King. Her mother Elizabeth was daughter to Alexander Kennedy of Blairgnhan. Multrare's wife was one of 16 daughters, all of whom married!!! There would be no failure of Scotch cousins in our family if one only knew where to look for them. Richard Multrare his younger brother had in 1527, a lawsuit with the Earl of Glammis his neighbour. Glammis Castle (of which not even the ruins are now visible) was in the parish of Kinghorn, about a mile & three quarters from Seafield Tower. It used formerly to be given in pledge by the Kings of Scotland for the payment of the dowers of the royal princesses. At last an Earl of Glammis marrying a daughter of one of the Kings, his royal father-in-law made him a present outright of the castle. The pleading is as follows:—

XXIX° Marcii 1527.

"Anent the time assignit be the lordis of counsule to Richard Multrare agains Johne Lord Glammis for the wrangeois spoliaciorm fra him of ane blak hors price XXIIII marks furth of Guckkeith, that is to say, the said Lord Gammis to compere personaly & gif his aith apown the said spulge, becaus the samyn was referit to his aith, with certificatioun an he comperrit nocht, the lordis wald refer the said mater to the said Richardis aith; the said Richart being personalie present & the said Lord Glammis oftimes callit & nocht compeirit, then lordis of counsule decernis & deliveris that the said Johne Lord Glammis has done wrong in the said spoliaciorm & sal restore the samyn to the said Richart als gude as it was the tyme of the said spulinge, becaus the mater was referrit to the said Richart's aith, wha maid faith as is above written."

"Oftentimes called & appeared not". The fact is, poor Lord Glammis had enough trouble on his hands at home without hampering himself with lawsuits about black horses or anything else. At this time he was engaged in an extremely dangerous quarrel with his countess, the beautiful and evil lady Janet, sister to Archibald Douglas ("Bell-the-Cat") earl of Angus, owing to the adherence of Lord Glammis to the cause of the young King (James V.) who was now endeavouring to free himself from the thraldom of the Douglas faction. A few months after this lawsuit she poisoned him. Ten years later, she was tried & condemned for an attempt, by the same means, on the life of the King himself. She was burnt alive on the rock of Edinburgh Castle, suffering her torments with the calm intrepidity of her race, & enlisting the sympathy of the ignorant on her behalf together with a belief of her innocence which has misled some later historians. Her second husband, Campbell of Skipnish, who was in confinement on the same charge was dashed to pieces on the rocks of the Castle crags in an attempt to escape from prison. Her son Lord Glammis, a youth of 15, pleaded guilty to the charge, under torture. In the following reign he obtained a pardon & restoration of his lands, on the plea of having made an untrue confession under terror of the rack. The hostility of the family however to the Lairds of Seafield continued to smoulder. In 1535 John Multrare found himself under the necessity of claiming the protection of the Crown against George Earl of Rothes (a connection of the Glammis house) "his mortale & deidly inymy, who had stoode with the said John's unimyis & perseivit him of his lyfe."

A royal charter of James IV to this Laird of Seafield & Markinch is interesting in its provisions as illustrating the terms of feudal tenure. It is dated 1511 (two years before the battle of Flodden-field) & is thus addressed:—

"Jacobus dei gracia Rex Scotorum ... Sciatis nos ... dedisse delicto nostro familiari Johanni Multrare totus et integras terras nostras de le Newtown de Markinch ... in dominis nostro de fyffe ... tenendas et habendas" &c.

Then after sundry provisions as to forfeiture, in case of his ever being convicted of murder or robbery &c., comes the requirements of him in war time as Crown Vassal.

"Ac sciam prelictus Johannes Multrare et heredes sive inneniendo, pro qualibet deum liberta dictarum terrarum, duos equestres, unum eorum cum lancea, cum uno equo operativo, ad faciendum nobis servicium, in nortris guerris et exercitibus cum per nostras literas ad hoc requisiti et man-dati fuerint . . . In cujus rei testimonium presenti caxte nostre magnum sigilium nostrum apponi precepimus . . . apud Edinburgh, quinto die mensis Augusti, anno domini millesimo quingentismo undecimo et regni nostri vicessimo quarto".

NOTE:—"Librata terra contains four oxgangs of land & every oxgang thirteen acres (skene) with us it is so much land as is yearly worth 20 s.

The terms of the address in this charter shew that the recipient was a man of some position at Court. The lands are all mentioned by name in it. In the next year, 1512, a few months before the battle of Flodden, when the Scottish hosts were mustering for the war, another royal confirmatory charter is given to this Laird, prescribing yet again the condition of his feudal service. The charter is given by Sir Henry Wardlaw of Torrey, Knight, to John Multrare & is confirmed by Royal Charter under the great seal. This provision is added:—

"Volo sciam . . . pro me et heredibus meis quod dictus Johannes &c. . mit liberi & quieti ab homagis, warda & relevio, & a secta alicujus civne, Reddendo inde annuatim . . . tres denarious strivelingorum none libere feodifirme."

The first of these two charters is interesting as shewing how many horsemen the Laird of Seafield took with him to Flodden when he fought by the side of his father-in-law, Stewart of Garlies, who fell in the action.

JOHN MULTRARE succeeded his father in 1540. By Royal charter of Mary Queen of Scots, dated Edinburg Aug. 16, 1547 he received from her 4 acres of land in "Bruselland" (is this the ancient name of Burntistand?) held till then by the famous James Kirkcaldy of Grange. It is possible that this grant of land to a royal favourite (and apparent confiscation from its owner) may have some bearing on the early hostility of the Laird of Grange to Queen Mary. He was one of the ablest soldiers of his day having learnt the art of war in Germany; & his leadership of the rebel army, in conjunction with Murray, achieved the Victory of Langside. That his real sympathies were however on the side of royalty is evident from his desertion of his party & return to his allegiance to Mary during the time of her English captivity. He held Edinburgh Castle for her, against Morton & the English army together with his friend Martland of Lethington. On the final surrender of the Castle Grange & his brother were executed at the Cross of Edinburgh, in the presence of an immense concourse of people.

It is clear from the following document that there was a fierce quarrel between the lairds of Seafield & the Kirkcaldys of Grange. It is dated some few years before Queen Mary's grant of 4 acres. By it both parties are bound over to keep the peace:—

Vigesimo Marcii 1533.

"In presens of the Lordis & Counsale compeirit Johanne Malville of Raith Knycht & James Kirkcaldy of the Grange for thaim, thair kynismen, frendis, servandis, & pairt takaris on that ane pairt, & Johnne Multrare of Seyfield, David Vallance, Henry Vallance & James Traile for thame, thair kyn frendis, servandis, assistaris & pairt takaris on that uther pairt & band & obligt thame, be the faith & treuth in thair bodyis to abyd & underly the sentence & decrete of the saidis Lordis, anent the modificatioun of making of assithmentis amangis thame for all slaugteris, mutilaciounis & criminall actiouns, committitt & done be any of the pairties upoun utheris unto the day of the daite herof siclik us and the samin was intentit befor thame & perservit be priemptoure summondis."

John Multrare seems to have taken the Catholic side in the dispute at the beginning of Queen Mary's reign. Kirkcaldy of Grange, his enemy being a strong Protestant. In the year 1560 the Protestant "Confession of Faith" was passed in the Scottish Parliament, together with a "Book of Discipline" for the government of the kirk. With regard to the laying on of hands the congregation decided that it was superfluous "for albeit the apostles used the imposition of hands, yet seeing the miracle is ceased, the using the ceremony we judge not to be necessary". Ministers were to be elected by the people & examined by the ministers & elders openly on the points then in controversy between the Roman Church & the Protestant bodies, as well as on Christian Doctrine generally. Parishes which could not obtain a Minister were to be served by a "Reader" instead, whose office it was to read the Common Prayers & the H. Scriptures, but not to administer the "Sacraments" The country was parcelled out into 10 districts over which were appointed 10 Ministers who were called "Superintendents". This was the Presbyterian system as adopted in Scotland at the time (1560) of the commencement of the reign of Elizabeth in England.

Seafield Tower stands in the parish of Kinghorn. To this parish one of these "Readers" was sent, who was immediately sent packing, bag & baggage, by John Multrare. Proceedings were taken against him by the Lords of Secret Council, sitting at Perth in 1564. Present the Earls of Moray, Morton (Chancellor) Athol, & Lord Ruthven (Secretary) The indictment is as follows:—

"The quhilk day, anent oure Soveraigne Ladiis lettres purehert be the Provert & Baillies of Kingorne, mak and mentioun that quhair thai conducit ane Reder for reding of the prayeris within the kirk of Kingorne & placeit him in ane convenient hous to dwell into, quhilk he peaceabillie broukit be a large space, nevirtheless, Johnne Multray of Seyfild, movit of hatred & malice in the moneth of . . . last bipast, hes be way of deid ejecht thair said redar furth of the said hous violentlie, quiairthrow he is notch abill to continue & use his vocayioun & the land of Seyfeld being diverse times chargeit & warneit to compeir befoir oure soverane Lady & hir counsall.... contennunttie dissobeyit & wald nocht compeir... the Lordis of Secret Counsall decermis & ordainis the said Johanne Multray of Seyfield....

to restore the Reader to his house or it will be the worse for him" &c. &c.

So bitter was Kirkcaldy of Grange against Queen Mary for her favour shewn to the Moultries by the grant to them of part of his land & against his neighbors the Moultries for their devotion to the cause of the unfortunate Queen, that when she was getting involved in her troubles in Edinburgh after Darnley's murder he caricatured her under the figure of our crest. This is Miss Strickland's account:—

"Among other cruel devices practiced against Mary at this season by her cowardly assailants, was the dissemination of gross personal caricatures which like the placards charging her as an accomplice in her husband's murder, were fixed on the doors of churches & other public places in Edinburgh * * * Mary was peculiarly annoyed at one of these productions called "The Mermaid" which represented her in the character of a crowned syren, with a sceptre formed of a fish's tail in her hand, & flanked with the regal initials M. R. This curious specimen of party malignity is still preserved in the state paper office. It is very well drawn in pen & ink, and preserves a striking likeness of Mary's lovely features, but with the melancholy expression of sickness & sorrow, and agreeing well with Drury's description of her woeful appearance when assisting at the services for the repose of her husband's soul."—Life of Mary Q. of Scots, Vol. 1, p. 424 (Bohn).

Queen Mary paid a visit to Moultrie's cousin Boseville (or Boswell) of Balmuto on her visit to Fife in 1565, just before her marriage with Darnley. Balmuto is close to Seafield Tower.

never before seen so perfect a pedigree of the 17th century. It is, however, entirely in narrative form, and it is only when reduced to the tabular form, which I have done, that its wonderful completeness can be fully comprehended. I may add that I have had the opportunity, in many instances, of testing the statements by a direct reference to parish registers, and so far have not detected a single error.

The present possessor will not allow the roll, or any entire portion of it, to be printed; and it would possess no particular interest except to the families immediately concerned, while to Americans its importance is confined to the Pelhams. I have, however, been allowed to copy it entire, and, under that express stipulation, to make such use of its details as I see fit. From the statements in this roll, and such other facts as I have been able to glean from other sources, I now propose to present what I believe to be the true history of Herbert Pelham.

As a specimen of the style of the Bennet roll, I will quote verbatim the commencement of the account of the Pelham family. It reads thus:

"By my Wife's Mother's Father. There were three brothers of the Pelhams, one called Black Pelham, the other White Pelham, the other only by the name of Pelham. Sir William Pelham of Brockleby in Lincoln was the Black Pelham, and mother Shute's mother for the White Pelham; so are also the Pelhams of Compton in Dorset. My g. g. grandfather Herbert Pelham his father's name was Anthony, and this Anthony Pelham's son and grandson married with Elizabeth and Penelope West, daughters of Lord Delaware."

This is all that the roll says respecting Anthony Pelham, with whom I shall commence my narrative, and with whose descendants, rather than his ancestors, we are especially concerned.

I. Anthony Pelham was the fourth and youngest son of Thomas Pelham, of Laughton, co. Suffolk (son and finally heir of Sir John Pelham, Kt.), and brother of William Pelham, ancestor of the Earls of Chichester and Yarborough, through the ordinary histories of which peerages his antecedents can be readily traced. The accounts which describe him as of Buxted, in Sussex, are entirely wrong. It does not appear that any Pelham ever lived at Buxted, and certainly this Anthony did not. It would be well to draw black lines in Berry's Sussex, p. 316, over his entire bit of pedigree, for almost every one of its statements is erroneous. He did not live at Buxted, did not die in 1577, and had no son Robert. His residence was in the parish of Warbleton, and the name of his seat was, as he himself spelt it in his will, "Buxstepe." In his day a mansion of some pretensions, it still exists as a farm-house, and is now known as Bucksteep. It was really the inheritance of his wife, and only became the property of the Pelhams by his bequeathing to her son, by a former husband, other property in exchange. His wife Margaret, whose maiden name was Hall, was, when he married her, the widow of one Pierce, by whom she had, with other issue, this son, Thomas Pierce, with whom the exchange was effected.

She was buried at Warbleton on the 9th of December, 1560. Anthony Pelham made his will on the 5th of April, 1563, describing himself as "of Buxstepe, in the parish of Warbulton, Esquire." The following is a full abstract of it:

To the poor of Warbleton and Dallington, £30.—My overseers, viz., my son in law William Morley, my cousin John Lunsford, and Barnard Randall, to have the use of all my personalty during the minority of Herbert my son, for the purchase of lands for him when 21 years of age—My manors, lands, and tenements in the counties of Kent, Sussex, Surrey, Dorset, Lincoln, Northumberland, and York, or elsewhere, to my said overseers until my said son Herbert be of age—To Thomas Pierce, my late wife's eldest son, certain lands, &c. in Westfield and Ore, co. Sussex, in lieu of my house and lands where I now dwell, called Buxstepe, which were the inheritance of Margaret my wife, and would by common law have descended to said Thomas Pierce—If my said son Herbert die without issue, then Buxstepe to go to said Thomas Pierce, and all my other lands to my nephew John Pelham and the heirs male of his body, with remainder to heirs male of the body of his father Sir Nicholas Pelham, Kt., remainder to my right heirs—My said son Herbert to be my sole executor.

This will was proved, 26 February, 1566–7, in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, by Herbert Pelham, son of the testator, the executor named.

Anthony Pelham had by his wife Margaret only two children, at least who survived. His daughter Anne became the second wife of William Morley, of Glynde, in Sussex, whose line terminated in heiresses in the second generation. His only son, viz.:

II. Herbert Pelham, had barely attained his majority when he proved his father's will, and hence was born in 1546. He was twice married, and by both wives had thirteen children, although the usual accounts allow him but four, and assign three of those to the wrong wife. His first wife was Catherine, daughter of John Thatcher, Esq., of Priesthawes (not Preshull), in the parish of Westham, co. Sussex, by Margaret, daughter of Sir Goddard Oxenbridge, Kt. By her he had one daughter and two sons, viz.:

1. Margaret, who married Sir Thomas Palmer, of Wingham, co. Kent, Kt., and was mother, among other children, of Herbert Palmer, the celebrated Master of Queen's College, Cambridge.
2. John Pelham, who, on the 28th of January, 1608–9, had a license from the Bishop of London to marry Catherine, daughter of John Yardley, Esq., of Henley, co. Warwick, spinster, aged eighteen. He was described as of the Middle Temple, Gentleman, a bachelor, aged twenty-four, son of Herbert Pelham, Esq., of Warbleton, Sussex. He was, therefore, born in 1584, and it may be assumed that his father's first marriage took place about 1580. I have failed to ascertain the subsequent history of this John Pelham, but he certainly died before his father, leaving at least no male issue, as will subsequently appear.
3. Herbert Pelham, of whom hereafter.

The exact date of death of Herbert Pelham's first wife Catherine does not appear. He married, secondly, at Wherwell, in Hampshire, Elizabeth West, eldest daughter of Thomas, second Lord De la Warr, by Anne, daughter of Sir Francis Knollys, K. G., Treasurer of the Household to Queen Elizabeth. According to the Bennet roll,* she was born 11 September, 1573, and baptized at Wherwell, her sponsors being Queen Elizabeth herself, the Countess of Lincoln, and the Earl of Leicester. She was married at Wherwell, to Herbert Pelham, 12 February, 1593–4, being then only twenty years and five months old, while her husband was about forty-eight. By her Herbert Pelham had the following issue:

* As an instance of the accuracy, minuteness and importance of this roll, I may mention that it gives the precise days of birth of no less than thirteen children of Lord De la Warr, many of whom do not appear in the peerages, with the names of their sponsors. It is probably the only record of them, as the parish register of Wherwell, of that period, has long since disappeared.

4. A daughter, born at Offington, 25 September, 1594.
5. A daughter, born at Michelham, 25 March, 1595.
6. A daughter, born 26 March, 1596.

   These three daughters, according to the Bennet roll, all died in their infancy; and, as no Christian names are assigned them, probably at their birth, and hence unnamed and unbaptized.

7. Thomas Pelham (eldest son by the second wife, and not, as hitherto stated, by the first wife), who was born at Chichester, 23 Jan. 1597–8. He married at Salisbury, 4 September, 1621, Blanche Eyre, who died in 1667. They lived at Compton-Valence, co. Dorset, and had a numerous family, whose history and alliances are set forth in the Bennet roll, but which are omitted here as possessing no special interest for American readers.
8. Anthony Pelham, who was born at Michelham, 5 March, 1599–1600. He became a clergyman. His will, dated at Fordington, co. Dorset, 29 April, 1659, was proved 27 July following. He named his children, but his wife was evidently dead. He was probably minister at Fordington during the commonwealth period, and hence his name does not appear in the official list of incumbents.
9. Anne (fourth daughter and sixth child by the second wife, and not, as usually stated, by the first wife), who was born at Hellingly, in Sussex, 22 March, 1601–2. She was married at Fordington, co. Dorset, 2 May, 1621, to the Rev. Edward Clarke, Vicar of St. Mary Magdalen, Taunton, co. Somerset, to whom she was second wife. They had three daughters, who all subsequently married clergymen in Devonshire, and a son John who was buried at Taunton, 23 June, 1630. On the 19th of December following she died, and two weeks later he also, both being buried in his church.
10. Elizabeth (also by the second wife, though hitherto otherwise stated), who was born at Hellingly, 27 April, 1604. She was married at Salisbury, 4 September, 1621, to John Humphry, Gentleman, usually described as of Chaldon, co. Dorset, but who, according to the Bennet roll, was then living near London.
11. A son, born at Dokinfield, 10 April, 1606, whose christian name is not given, and who probably died in infancy.
12. Katherine, who was born at Dokinfield, 22 August, 1607, and buried at Warbleton, 17 March, 1608–9.
13. Jonathan Pelham, who was born at Cralle, in Warbleton, 6 Feb. 1609–10, and baptized at Warbleton on the 11th of the same month. He died unmarried, and a creditor administered his estate, the letters being dated 2 May, 1634, when he was described as late of Fordington, co. Dorset.

The time of Herbert Pelham's death has never before been correctly stated (Berry says 30 July, 1625), but I have discovered the Inquisition post mortem, which fixes the date as 12 April, 1620, and also the confirmatory evidence of the record of administration of his estate, the letters being granted to his son Herbert on the 27th of May in that year, when he was described as late of Fordington, co. Dorset. After occupying several different residences in Sussex, all, however, in or near Warbleton, he appears to have passed the last few years of his life at Fordington, where some of his children continued for some years afterwards. His widow Elizabeth evidently took up her residence with her own eldest son Thomas, at Compton Valence, Dorset, where she died, 15 January, 1632–3, and was buried. Her monumental inscription describes her as in her 59th year, which perfectly agrees with the date of her baptism as given in the Bennet roll.

We now return to his third child, and second but eldest surviving son, by by his first wife, Catherine Thatcher, viz.:

III. HERBERT PELHAM. By his father's Inquisition post mortem, dated 9 April, 1621, he was found to be his son and heir, which proves, as has before been said, that his elder brother John died vita patris, leaving no male issue. He married, about 1599, Penelope West, fourth daughter of Thomas, second Lord De la Warr, and consequently his stepmother's younger sister. She was born, according to the Bennet roll, 9 September, 1582. When or where she died I have so far been unable to ascertain, but the same authority states that they "had 16 children, most of them born in Sussex or Lincolnshire."* The roll specifically mentions twelve of them, and adds: "The rest of the 16 children, some of them dead-born, some died unbaptized." I have otherwise identified two not named in the roll, making 14 in all, and the remaining two were probably still-born, a class of children which the compiler always carefully included throughout the entire roll. These children were as follows:

1. HERBERT PELHAM, of whom hereafter.
2. William Pelham, second son. He makes a nuncupative will on or about 8 August, 1667, leaving all his possessions to his brother Herbert, who took out letters of administration under it, 7 January following, when the testator was described as a bachelor. He was probably not far from sixty years of age at his death. There can, I think, be little doubt that he was the William Pelham named by Savage as being in New England from 1630 to 1647, and in England in 1652.
3. John Pelham, third son, of whom the roll says nothing more, but who was clearly the John Pelham, aged 20, who, with his sister Penelope, emigrated to New England in 1635. He would have been born in 1615. Savage does not dispose of him, and I find no later trace of him in this country.
4. Anthony Pelham, fourth son. I find that I have his baptism at Boston, co. Lincoln, 24 May, 1621; but I fail to trace him later.
5. Edward, fifth son. No more in the roll.
6. A son, who lived and died in London, unmarried.
7. A son, who also lived and died in London, unmarried.

The roll affords no further information about the last two, and it is clear that the seven sons are not placed in strict chronological order. Probably the last two should come somewhere between the others. I give the daughters as they are enumerated in the roll:

1. Margaret, eldest daughter. She was living unmarried at the date of the will of her brother-in-law Ashton, 3 May, 1647, and appears to have been buried at Bures, in Suffolk, in 1661.
2. Catherine, second daughter, who was born at Dokenfield, in Sussex, 22 Aug. 1606, and married at Compton, in Dorset, in 1631, to the Rev. James Ashton, of Kilmersdon, co. Somerset. He died before Michaelmas, 1647, aged 52. She died the 19th, and was buried 21 April, 1659, both in Kilmersdon church. They had two sons and three daughters, who all died young except the second daughter, Catherine, who married 25 Aug. 1658, at Kilmersdon, Thomas Shute, Gent., and their second daughter, Catherine, born the 30th, and baptized 31 March, 1661, was married there, 15 May, 1683, to Samuel Bennet, the compiler of the roll referred to.
3. "Helenor, third daughter, lived till she was 19 or 20 years old: she had a black Pudding arm." I quote the roll verbatim.
4. Penelope, fourth daughter. The roll, in another place, says: "My great aunt Penelope Pelham is married to Mr. Belingham, Gent.: they live in Boston, in New England." She was, of course, the wife of the well-known Governor Richard Bellingham, whom she survived nearly thirty years, dying at Boston, 28 May, 1702. She was born about 1619, her age being given as sixteen at her emigration in 1635.

* The accounts hitherto have assigned them positively only one son, possibly two more, and two daughters; but certainly there were no less than ten children living at their father's death.

5. "Elizabeth, youngest daughter, 70 age, lives with her sister Penelope, at Boston, New England." Again I quote the roll verbatim, and for a special purpose. The date of the roll is simply 1693, and this entry may have been made anywhere between 25 March, 1693, and 24 March, 1693–4. If her age were given with precise accuracy, she would have been born in 1623, or before 24 March, 1623–4. In the parish register, of Boston, co. Lincoln, under the date of 8 July, 1624, occurs the baptism of "Elizabeth, daughter of Herbert Pelham, Esq.," and there can be no reasonable doubt that this is the entry of her baptism. Neither can there be any doubt that it was she, and not her brother Herbert's second wife, who, according to Savage, died 1 April, 1706, in her 84th year, and was buried at Marshfield, Mass. That it was not the latter will be abundantly proved hereafter. She was really, therefore, not quite 82 at her death.

The two other daughters not named in the roll were:

6. Anne, who was buried at Boston, co. Lincoln, 10 March, 1622–3, and
7. Martha, who was baptized at Boston, 6 March, 1622–3, and buried there, 19 April, 1624. Both are in each instance described as daughters of Herbert Pelham, Esq.

Like his father, this Herbert Pelham died intestate, as did his wife, who probably survived him, so that we are without the information that might have been afforded by their wills, and hence the value of the details contained in the Bennet roll. He appears to have been somewhat of a wanderer, and almost as having no settled home, which is the more strange when we consider his very large family. When he administered his father's estate in 1621, he was described as of Hastings in Sussex, but most of his children had been born at other places in that county. He had inherited from his father the manor of Swineshead, in Lincolnshire, but he evidently never lived there, as the register of the parish does not contain a single entry of his family. The last year of his life, and rather more, was spent at Boston in Lincolnshire, and he was buried in the Rev. John Cotton's church, not in 1625 as is usually stated, but, according to the parish register, on the 20th of July, 1624. His Inquisition post mortem, dated 20 June, 1625, says that he died "the last day of July last past," a discrepancy of at least eleven days. He was never knighted, as has been hitherto stated. In every record of him that has been discovered, down to that of his burial in the Boston register and the Inquisition post mortem, nearly a year later, he is invariably described as "Herbert Pelham, Esquire."

We now return to his eldest son, viz.:

IV. Herbert Pelham, of whom the Bennet roll only says: "My great-uncle Herbert, eldest son of my great-grandfather and great-grandmother, Herbert and Penelope Pelham, married Mrs. Waldgrave, of Essex, a great heiress, buried her, married again, and had by both his wives four sons and six daughters." His first wife's name has hitherto been erroneously stated as Elizabeth. Their marriage license, granted by the Bishop of London, describes her as Jemima Waldegrave, spinster, aged about twenty, daughter of Thomas Waldegrave, of Bures ad montem in Essex, Esquire. Herbert Pelham is described as of Boston, co. Lincoln, Esquire, a bachelor, aged about twenty-six. He was born, therefore, in 1600, and this date is confirmed by his father's Inquisition post mortem, when he was found to be son and next heir, and aged twenty-four at his father's death. Jemima Waldegrave was not, as has been hitherto stated, daughter and coheir of Thomas Waldegrave by Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Gurdon of Assing-ton, who were her grandparents, she being the second daughter and coheir of their son Thomas, who inherited Ferriers Court, in Bures, co. Suffolk, and whose wife was Margaret, daughter and heir of John Holmstead, of Halstead, co. Essex, Esquire. By her Herbert Pelham had issue as follows:

1. Waldegrave Pelham, eldest son, of whom hereafter.
2. Nathaniel Pelham, second son, baptized at Bures, 5 Feb. 1631–2. He is said to have graduated at Harvard College, and to have died in New England, in 1657. His father, in his will, dated 1 January, 1672–3, directs that a year's rent of certain premises shall be paid to Josias Winslow, in satisfaction of a debt which "he says my son Nathaniel Pelham owes him," but the rest of the will gives no intimation that he was still alive, and the word was probably a clerical error for owed.
3. Jemima, eldest daughter. The Bennet roll says that she "married Samuel Kem, called Maior, Alesbury, six miles from Oxford." This is one of the very few instances in which I have found the roll not strictly accurate, but I am able to set it right from my own Collections. Her husband was the Rev. Samuel Kem, B.D., Rector of Albury, near Oxford, and the record of the publication of their intended marriage occurs in the register of St. Martin in the Fields, London, under the date of 19 January, 1653–4. In his own parish register of Albury, Mr. Kem made the following entry, under the date of 10 February in the same year: "Mr. Samuel Kem, pastor of this parish, and Mrs. Jemima Pelham, eldest daughter to Harbert Pelham, Esq., of Ferriers Court, co. Essex, in the parish of Buers, co. Suffolk, were published three times in Albury Church, and they were married, and proclaimed husband and wife, by Mr. Jacob Roswell, J. P., in Trinity parish in London, the following 10th of February." She did not long survive, for three and a half years later, Mr. Kem, with his own hand, wrote the following entry in the Albury register: "Jemima Kem, eldest daughter of Herbert Pelham, Esq., of Essex, and second wife of Mr. Samuel Kem, B.D., and Rector of Albury, died the 20th day of August, 1657, and was buried at her father's church, in the chancel, of Buers in Suffolk." Mr. Kem married a third wife in 1659, and buried her in 1661, after which I have no knowledge of him. He appears to have had no issue by Jemima Pelham.
4. Penelope, second daughter. The Bennet roll says: "My cousin Penelope Pelham, second daughter, married William Winslow, of Boston, New England, and lives there." This should of course read Josiah Winslow. The inaccuracy is, so far, the only serious one I have discovered in the entire roll, and is readily rectified. She was baptized at Bures in 1633, married in New England in 1657, died there 7 December, 1703, and was buried at Marshfield, Mass. Her age could have been only 70, instead of 73, as hitherto stated.
5. Catherine. The Bennet roll says: "My cousin Katherine Pelham, youngest daughter by the first wife, lived and was married." She was living at the date of her father's will, 1 January, 1672–3, as Katherine Clarke, but her husband is not otherwise named.

It seems probable that all these children went with their father to New England in 1638, and that when he finally returned to England he left behind him only Nathaniel and Penelope. I have not been able to ascertain when their mother died, or where she was buried, but it was doubtless before the emigration, as Herbert Pelham's second marriage must have taken place, in New England, the following year. His second wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Godfrey Bosvile, of Gunthwaite, Yorkshire, and widow of Roger Harlakenden, who had died in New England in November, 1638, leaving two young daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret. The Bennet roll does not name her, but after mentioning Catherine, youngest daughter by Herbert Pelham's first wife, says: "Next, his children by a second wife," and enumerates them as follows:

6. "Edward Pelham, my cousin, son of my great-uncle Herbert, and [illegible] to Waldgrave Pelham by the father's side, is married and lives at [illegible] New England." As he either remained in New England, or returned there after arriving at maturity, his history must there be sought.* He will be found mentioned in his father's will. I cannot but note, however, that if he graduated at Harvard College in 1673, and died in September, 1730, as is stated, he must have been upwards of [illegible] years of age at his graduation, and nearly ninety at his death.
7. "Herbert Pelham, my cousin, was second son of my great uncle Herbert by his second wife." He appears to have been born in New England, [illegible] October, 1645, and buried 2 January following.
8. Mary, who is said to have been born in New England, 12 Nov. 1640. The Bennet roll says: "My cousin Mary Pelham, the eldest daughter of my great uncle Herbert by his second wife, died in Essex, unmarried."
9. Frances, who is said to have been in New England 9 Nov. 1643. The Bennet roll says: "My cousin Frances Pelham, second daughter of my [illegible] uncle Herbert by his second wife, lived and was married in Essex." She was doubtless the wife of Jeremiah Stonnard (or Stannard) whom her father named in his will as his son.
10. Anne, of whom the Bennet roll says: "My cousin Anne, third daughter by the second wife, died unmarried, in Essex." She was living at the date of her father's will, 1 January, 1672–3.

Besides these ten children, there was clearly another son, viz.:

11. Henry Pelham, who is distinctly so called in his father's will. He appears to have been buried at Bures in the latter part of the year 1699, and his widow Elizabeth took out letters of administration to his estate, 28 June, 1700. Her will, dated 30 Dec. 1713, was proved 3 February following. They seem to have had an only son William, who was baptized at Bures in 1677, and whose will, dated 3 February, 1714–15, was proved 21 May following, by his widow Elizabeth. He left two young children, Henry and Elizabeth, the latter being baptized at Bures in 1713.

I can find no evidence that Herbert Pelham had still another son, William, as has been sometimes stated, but it is not impossible. At all events he was not named in his father's will.

Knowing that Herbert Pelham did not make the slightest allusion to his second wife Elizabeth in his will, I always doubted that it was she who, according to Savage and others, was buried at Marshfield, Mass., in 1706, and, after a careful search, I discovered that on the 25th of August, 1699, letters to administer the estate of Elizabeth Pelham, late of Ferriers in Bures, co. Essex, were granted, by the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, to her husband Herbert Pelham. There can of course be no doubt as to her identity, and thus a double mystery is cleared up, as I have shown when and where she really died, and that it was her husband's sister who was buried at Marshfield in 1706. Of her daughter by her former husband, Margaret Harlakenden, I have found no trace, but her other daughter, Elizabeth Harlakenden, will be mentioned hereafter.

Herbert Pelham does not appear, as suggested by Savage, to have been a lawyer, but simply a country gentlemen. Certainly he was not educated at Oxford. The Herbert Pelham who matriculated at that university in 1619, and accepted by Mr. Savage as the emigrant, is distinctly declared in the register to have been the son of a Knight, which his father never was. They were distant kinsmen, the Oxford student being the son of Sir William Pelham, of Brocklesby, co. Lincoln.

Herbert Pelham survived his last wife fifteen years, dying at the age of 73, and was buried at Bures, 1 July, 1674. He made his will on the [illegible] of January, 1672–3, but for some reason it was not proved until 30 [illegible]

1676. As the last record of one whose name is closely connected with the early history of New England, a full abstract of it may prove acceptable. The incorrect orthography of it must be attributed to the scrivener who wrote it. Omitting only the mere verbiage, it reads thus:

I, Herbert Pelham, of Ferrers, in Bewers Hamlet, in the County of Essex, Esquire, etc.—To my son Waldegrave Pelham all those lands, tenements, &c. with the rents and arrearages, which belong to me by virtue of a settlement of James Thacker [rightly Thatcher], late of Perist-Hawes [i. e. Priesthawes] in Sussex, Esq., or by virtue of any settlement of William Thacker or John Thacker, sons of said James Thacker, or by any other ways or means whatsoever, which were settled by him or them upon Katherine Pelham my grandmother, sister of said James Thacker, and descend upon me as heir of said Katherine Pelham—Whereas I have settled my manor of Swinstead alias Swineshead [rightly Swineshead] in Lincolnshire, on my said son Waldegrave and his heirs male, I now confirm the same—Whereas, by my Indenture dated 12 December 1667, I have settled, after my decease, a certain farm in Swinstead North-End, my will now is that the yearly rent of said farm be paid as follows: to my sister Penelope, wife of Richard Bellingham, Esq., £30. per annum for her life; to Elizabeth Pelham my sister £10. per annum for life; and the remaining £10. per annum to my daughter Penelope Winslow for life—If my son Edward Pelham survive my sister Bellingham, he to have, after her decease, £10. per annum thereof, and, after the death of both of my said sisters and my said daughter, he to receive the whole of said rents for life, and, at his death, the whole of said lands to come to my said son Waldegrave and his heirs male, with remainder to the heirs male to Edward Pelham, remainder to Henry Pelham and his heirs male, remainder to my right heirs—Whereas I have settled by my deed upon my said son Edward, for his life, my lands at Smeeth Hall, being 480 acres, part of the Eight Hundred Fenn, and a house and land in Chapel Hill, in Lincolnshire, my will is that he shall not receive any rents thereof until my debts are paid, and then the first year's rent shall be paid to my daughter Anne Pelham; the second year's rent to my sons Henry Pelham and Jeremiah Stonnard (viz. £20. to my son Stonnard and the residue to my son Henry); the third year's rent to my son Josias Winslow, in satisfaction of a debt which he says my son Nathaniel Pelham owes [sic] him; the fourth year's rent to my daughter Penelope Winslow, if living, or to her children if she be dead; the next three year's rent to be paid "into the hands of my son Winslow for the use of my son Edward Pelham, to be paid unto him in New England, if he reside there, upon the conditions hereafter expressed, that is to say, if he said Edward Pelham so behave and demean himself that he can procure either the hands of the Governor and four of the Magistrates or Assistants of the Colony of the Mattachusetts Bay, or of New Plymouth Government, that he is now grown serious, sober, and solid, and follows his study, and avoids all idle and profuse company, and that they verily conceive there is a real change in him for the better, and not only to attain his ends thereby, then, upon such certificate," &c., said three years' rent shall be paid to him by my son Winslow, and afterwards said Edward shall receive said rents for life; "but, if in all these years he will not be reclaimed," &c., then the first year's rent after said three years shall be paid to my said son Waldegrave, the second to my daughter Winslow, the third to my daughter Clarke, the fourth to my daughter Anne, the fifth to my son Henry, and then to begin again with my son Waldegrave, &c.—All my lands in Oweneboy, in the barony of Kirricurry, co. Cork, Ireland, to my said son Henry and his heirs male, with remainder to Edward Pelham, remainder to my said son Waldegrave, remainder to my right heirs—My daughters Katherine Clarke and Anne Pelham, each to have £25. per annum for life out of my lands in Wigtoft in Lincolnshire, and my son Henry Pelham the residue of the rents thereof for life, and, at the death of either, his or her part to be paid to the use of Waldegrave Pelham and Herbert Pelham, my grandchildren, for their lives—"To my son Edward Pelham all my lands, tenements and hereditaments in New England, in the Mattachusetts Bay in America, scituate, lying and being in Cambridge, Watertown, Sudbury, or elsewhere within the said Colony, which are laid out unto me, as also all other which are due to me from any of the said towns, or from the country, which are not laid out unto me, together with all such rents and arrearages of rents as shall be due unto me at the time of my death for any lands letten within the said Colony"—All my plate in New England to my said son Edward, with one great silver tankard which was given him by his grandfather Godfrey Boseville, Esquire—All other brass, bedding, linen, with all my books, and other utensils and moveables, which I have in the Mattachusetts Bay in New England, to be divided between my son Edward Pelham and my daughter Penelope Winslow—To my daughter, the wife of Mr. Guthlach Tolliot, the cabinet that was her mother's, and to her daughter Elizabeth a silver cup—I appoint my son Waldegrave Pelham my sole executor.

The only portion of this will not already referred to, and necessary to explain, is that relating to the mysterious daughter, wife of Guthlach Tolliot, who, in the only account of the Pelham family in which I have seen him mentioned, completely loses his identity by being strangely metamorphosed, no doubt from accidental causes, into Cuthlac Elliot.* She was not Herbert Pelham's own daughter, but his second wife's eldest daughter by her former husband, being no other than the Elizabeth Harlakenden who was born, according to Savage, at Cambridge, Mass., in December, 1636. I find among my Collections the record of their marriage, at St. Augustine's, London, 2 February, 1659–60, he being described as of St. Mary le Bow, London, and she as "Elizabeth Harlackinden, of Bures St. Mary in Essex."

It now only remains to follow out briefly the history of Herbert Pelham's eldest son by his first wife, Jemima Waldegrave, viz.:

V. Waldegrave Pelham, who was baptized at Bures, 26 September, 1627. The Bennet roll says: "My cousin Waldgrave, eldest son of my great uncle Pelham, by his first wife Mrs. Waldgrave, lives at a house called Ferriers, near Buers Town in Essex." He was admitted to the Inner Temple in November, 1647, and married Abigail, daughter of Thomas Glascock, of Hedingham Sible, Essex. She was buried at Bures in 1698, and he late in 1699. Letters to administer his estate were granted, 28 February following, to his brother Edward Pelham, who, it thus appears, was then in England. Their children were as follows:

1. Waldegrave Pelham, who was baptized at Bures 6 June, 1667, and evidently died in infancy.
2. Herbert, of whom hereafter.
3. Waldegrave Pelham, second of the name, who was baptized at Bures in 1670. He died unmarried, and a creditor administered to his estate, 19 May, 1703.
4. Penelope, who was living unmarried, 28 February, 1699–1700, when she renounced administration to her father's estate.
5. Margaret, who was also living unmarried at her father's death, but who renounced administration to her brother Waldegrave's estate, 19 May, 1703, then as Margaret Jenison.
6. Jemima, who died unmarried, and was buried at Bures in 1721.
7. Abigail,
8. Elizabeth,
9. Mary,

who apparently all died young.

The second but eldest surviving son, viz.:

VI. Herbert Pelham, died in 1746, and, according to his monument at Bures, in his 77th year. His widow, Sarah, was buried there in 1748.

* The author of the account of the Pelham family in the Heraldic Journal for April, 1867 (iii. 84-9), to which we suppose Col. Chester refers, quotes this name as from the will of Herbert Pelham, and probably obtained it from the copy communicated to the Register for April, 1864 (xviii. 172-5), where the name appears, "Cuthlach Elliott."—Editor.

They appear to have died intestate, as I can discover no will or record of administration of either in any of the courts of London or Essex. Their issue were as follows:

1. Waldegrave Pelham, who was baptized at Bures in 1703. He died, apparently unmarried, and was buried at Southwell, in Nottinghamshire, 20 May, 1763.
2. Sarah, who was baptized at Bures in 1705, and buried there in 1714.
3. Herbert Pelham, who was baptized at Bures in 1707, and buried there in 1729.
4. William Byatt Pelham, who was baptized at Bures in 1709, but of whom I can discover nothing further.
5. Nathaniel Pelham, who was baptized at Bures in 1713, and buried there in 1736.
6. Elizabeth, who was baptized at Bures in 1716.

It may, I think, be assumed with tolerable safety, that unless there are descendants of Edward Pelham of New England, the male line of Herbert Pelham became extinct in the last generation recorded, and probably on the death, in 1763, of the last Waldegrave Pelham.

* The English having conquered the Dutch at New York, Connecticut yielding, Long Island and other islands in the vicinity were attached to New York. On the 30th of July, 1673, the fort at New York, and New York city, and the former Dutch possessions were re-captured by the Dutch vessels of war. After these re-captures and during the occupation by the Dutch, the three eastern English towns of Long Island, namely, Southold, Southampton and Easthampton, avoiding hostilities, maintained their independence of the Dutch, and continued English forms of rule, except the small islands of Plumb, Fisher's, Gardiner's and Shelter island, more exposed to the Dutch vessels of war, who made professions of obedience. The towns were never under and never accepted Dutch rule. They associated with Connecticut for government, and from them received aid. The Dutch officers on capturing vessels from New England and from these towns, did not insist on strict forfeitures. They never enforced a single act of interior government that can be traced. But the officers, after sending a formal commission to these towns, reported back their acts of obedience under arms, etc. By a treaty of peace, signed at Westminster in Feb. 1674, all conquests were to be restored. A surrender of New York city and government was made Oct. 31, 1674, by the Dutch officers to the English, and to Sir Edmund Andros as governor, for the Duke of York. Andros, by his proclamation of Nov. 9th, confirmed to the people all former grants and privileges. Whereupon the inhabitants of Southold declared themselves under the jurisdiction of Connecticut, and expressed their desire to remain so. A committee was at once appointed to coöperate with South Hampton and East Hampton, and apply, in this emergency, to Connecticut for aid. A memorial was immediately drawn up, signed by John Youngs of Southold, [John?] Mulford of East Hampton, and John Howell of South Hampton, as deputies for and in behalf of those towns, they having previously been elected and acted as deputies to the Hartford government, and had been appointed magistrates. Andros then issued a peremptory demand and order upon the eastern towns, that the old overseers and constables, appointed before the conquest by the Dutch, should be restored to their offices, under the penalty of the inhabitants of these towns being declared rebels. The deputies were ordered to appear and answer before the council, under like penalty. By proclamation Nov. 26, a term of the

SIR ALEXANDER BOSWELL of AUCHINLECK
(1775–1822)

By BROTHER RAYMOND CARTER, P.M., Lodge 753

There is very little sense in having pride in one's heritage or studying and glorifying the past unless from it one is imbued with the desire to progress and build for the future. It is however from history that one can so often receive the inspiration and vigour to move forward with greater impetus. If this be true of life in general it is no less true of Freemasonry in particular. The energy and enterprise of some of our great predecessors in the Craft is worthy of study. This year, two hundred years after his birth, is a particularly apt moment in time to recall a great personality in Scottish Freemasonry, Sir Alexander Boswell. True to his beliefs and teachings, he was instrumental in erecting an edifice to another historic member of our Craft. The story of how he accomplished this is, for sheer pertinacity, in itself an inspiration—but, of this more anon.

Alexander, the elder son of James Boswell, the great biographer, was born on 9th October 1775 at Auchinleck, Ayrshire. He was born at the Adam-designed mansion built by his grandfather, Lord Auchinleck, a Senator of the College of Justice. Dr Johnson is reputed to have stayed there after his tour of the Hebrides. Alexander distinguished himself in his schooling, winning a scholarship to Westminster, later proceeding to Oxford. There he was not so distinguished as his younger brother, James, who was an outstanding Scholar of Classics at Brazenose College and who later edited Edmund Malone's twenty-one volumes on Shakespeare. Malone was a celebrated Shakespearian commentator. However James died at the early age of forty-two. Alexander left a fine tribute to his brother from which these wonderful lines are an extract:—

"His was a lot that few are blessed to know
More proved, more valued, fervent yet so kind
He never lost one friend, nor found one foe"

When his father died in 1795 Alexander succeeded to the estate. He set off, as was the fashion in those days, on a grand tour of Europe, returning in 1799. He married Grace Cunningham, daughter of an Edinburgh banker and settled down to manage his estate and interest himself in local affairs. His father had been fond of the city life, enjoying the happiness of the beau monde and the company of celebrities. Alexander was far more interested in local affairs. Not for him the life of the absentee landlord! He took a great interest in agriculture and in all forms of outdoor sports. Foxhunting and curling in particular claimed his interest.

An interesting story in an old issue of the "Scots Times" relates how the industry of making snuff mulls and fancy wood boxes originated in Auchinleck. It seems that a Frenchman staying with Boswell needed to have his French-made snuff box repaired. It was taken to the village to one John Crawford who, having repaired it, afterwards became the father of the local trade in this. First he made a replica for the Laird of Auchinleck and from this model many orders were received and an industry developed.

Alexander Boswell established at Auchinleck the famous Printing Press. He had in mind at the time to print some old and rare tracts in his possession from the library in Auchinleck House.

Alexander Boswell was a member of Parliament and in July 1821 was created a Baronet by King George III for public services.

In December 1817 Alexander Boswell is recorded as being entered a gentleman apprentice, passed fellowcraft and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason in Mother Kilwinning Lodge. In 1820 he was elected R.W.M. and by virtue of this office, Provincial Grand Master of Ayrshire. He filled this high office with great merit. It should also be mentioned that during this time he composed a selection of masonic songs and elegies, the composition of which suited his particular talent. On the laying of the foundation stone of Burns Monument at Alloway he composed a poetical tribute to Burns and a Masonic ode " To Anacreon in heaven ". The erection of this memorial to our national Bard was really due to the enthusiasm and determination of Alexander Boswell. He conceived the idea that Scotland should pay homage to the genius of her National Bard.

On his initiative an advertisement was placed in the " Ayr Advertiser " on 17th March 1814, announcing a meeting to be held at the King's Arms, Ayr, at noon on 24th March, for the purpose of organising a subscription list. It must have been to his consternation to find that only five other people were present at the meeting but nothing daunted, Boswell took the chair—his kinsman Hamilton Douglas Boswell was appointed secretary and treasurer, and a resolution was passed that steps should be taken to promote a memorial by inviting subscriptions. The amount originally aimed at was £1,000 but the cause was not enthusiastically received by the public and it took over four years to collect even that modest sum. Indeed nearly ten years passed between the date of launching the appeal and the actual handing over of the completed monument to the Trustees. Yet, the work of the originators of the appeal never flagged and subscriptions continued to come in, slowly but surely, so that by the time the Monument was completed or very shortly after more than seven hundred people had raised over £2,000. Among the subscribers is to be found the name of the Prince Regent who donated fifty guineas. In the records of the Trustees of the Monument it is stated " . . . the enthusiasm, perseverance, liberality and personal attention of Mr Boswell of Auchinleck, has been so marked, and so excessive and his nature so congenial to the task that he falls unquestionably to be characterised as its first, best and steadiest friend ".

On 25th January 1820, as Depute Provincial Grand Master of Ayrshire, Boswell had the honour of laying with Masonic Honours the foundation stone in the neighbourhood of Alloway's Auld Haunted Kirk, on the Banks of the Doon. It was a ceremony in which twenty-four Lodges took part. In the cavity of the stone there was placed a hermetically sealed vase containing Masonic emblems, an engraved copperplate and vellum bearing identical inscriptions, copies of the plans and specifications. The inscription on the copperplate and vellum is:—

By favour of Almighty God,
On the Twenty-fifth day of January AD MDCCCXX of the Aera of Masonry, 5820, and in the 60th year of the Reign of our beloved Sovereign George III
His Royal Highness George, Prince of Wales, being Regent of the United Kingdom, and a Munificent Subscriber to the Edifice,
The foundation Stone of the Monument Erected by public subscription in the Honour of the Genius of
ROBERT BURNS
The Ayrshire Poet, was laid
by Alexander Boswell, Esq. of Auchinleck M.P. Worshipful

Depute Grand Master of the Most Ancient Lodge of Kilwinning, attended by all the Mason Lodges in Ayrshire, according to the Ancient Usages of Masonry.

Thos. Hamilton, Junr. Edinr. Architect
John Connell, Junr. Builder, Contractor.

Boswell's speech on that occasion showed a fine fraternal feeling of love for the Bard. He concluded his glowing eulogy on Burns with the words:—

" May the work prosper and when happily completed, then may it tell to future generations that the age that can produce a Burns was rich also in those who could appreciate his talents, and who, while they felt and owned the power of his name, have here honoured his name."

Boswell has been noted as having a particular talent for poetry and his poems and songs were of a high standard. To name a few there is " Jenny dang the weaver ", " Jenny's Bawbee ", " The spirit of Tintoe ", " Guid night and joy be with you a " and to " The memory of Burns ".

There remains to be recorded the tragic circumstances of his death. In a way one could say that it was his pen that brought this about. In the " Glasgow Sentinel " there appeared what was entitled " A New Whig Song ". It was attributed to Boswell. It was the cause of his being challenged to a duel by Mr James Stuart of Dunearn, who was stigmatised in this song. The challenge was conveyed to Sir Alexander by the Earl of Rosslyn. The duel was fought at Auchtertool, Fife, and Sir Alexander Boswell was slain. This was the last duel to be fought on Scottish soil.

Only a few days before, Sir Alexander had dined with his friend, Sir Walter Scott, in Castle Street, Edinburgh, and it is recorded that the news of Boswell's death gave Scott a severe shock as he still retained the merry tones of his friend's voice in his ears.

" Alas, vindictive was the wrath,
And fatal was the blow,
Thou pride of Scottish chivalry,
In death that laid thee low."

Att. to Scott

Sir Alexander Boswell obviously found in Freemasonry something akin to his own native genius—he did much for it and even now two hundred years later we can get a great deal of pleasure and profit in remembering his deeds and his initiative. Like the acacia in our hearts his memory should remain evergreen. He delighted in Scotland, he delighted in the Craft and in this respect he is a worthy example to us all.

THEIR ANCIENT ALLIANCES AND CONNECTIONS FROM THE FOUNDER OF THE NAME IN THE YEAR 1066, TO THIS DATE, 1906.

With Legends and other accessory matter of general interest much associated with British History, connected with many Ancient Noble Families of Yorkshire and Scotland, showing Pedigrees and Arms of the same compiled from public Records, Charters, and Family Documents.

disguised our French or Norman-French origin, and the name is now spelt Boswell, with but one single exception in the male descent, that of Thomas Boswell of Kirkcaldy, whose father spelt his name Boiswell. Taking the oldest documental authorities and seals as being the best and indisputable references, we find the name on a seal of Alice Boswell, the wife of Sir John Boswell, of Yorkshire, in the 13th Century is spelt Bosvil; the earlier English Boswells are spelt Bosevile by the various writers, but we have no proof that they themselves so spelt it, either by seal or other document. In the Scotch Exchequer Rolls, the earliest of the name (in 1329) is spelt Boswell, and on the earliest Scotch Seal in existence is spelled the same (dated 1486 and now in the writer's possession); in other signed, as well as sealed documents dated 1557 and 1575, the name is spelt Boswell. This is the earliest Scotch spelling; there is no proof to warrant the various spellings of the name both in England and Scotland, in the handwriting of individuals concerned, only by others who wrote and spelt their names according to the sound of the same as spoken at the time. Alexander Boswell, of Blackadder, did spell his name Boswăll, but he was descended from the Kirkcaldy Boswells, themselves descendants of the Balmuto Boswells, the "well" in that district being pronounced "wăll." The prominence given to the world by James Boswell (Johnson's biographer) by his writings, no doubt had the final effect of a settlement of the spellings. Alexander Boswell was in India at that time, and probably did not see James Boswell's works, or even hear of them. In India he had made himself a name and position, and returning to Scotland with a considerable fortune, he purchased large estates. Having used the vowel (a) so long and being now possessed of estate and notoriety, he might think his individuality would be lost by any change in the spelling. He died a bachelor in 1812, leaving his estates to descendants of his most distant relations, passing by those nearest to him, in consequence it is said, of an imprudent marriage, or one which thwarted a pet scheme of his own. The estates so willed by him were truly made in perfect legal order, conditional and entailed to the male line of these families that they should adopt the name of Boswăll, which was done, and has been repeated ever since, having ended for the time being in the male line direct. After Alexander's will all the immediate branch and descendants of Thomas, before named, became convinced their name was Boswall, in expectation of succession, etc., which even yet in their delusion they do not despair of, and one or two abortive attempts have been made to obtain what they consider their rights. There is however no legal claim.

One of the first legatees has now several branch families, and there is no sign of failure in that respect, but even if all the heirs male in direct descent died, there was no remainder made over to them. There would have been no Boswalls now, in direct descent of the Boswells, had it not been for that will. The actual spelling of the name Boswall is however Boswell, as explained by Mr. William Graham Boss, a gentleman of antiquarian ability at Edinburgh. He says, "The spelling Boswall in Kirkcaldy and neighbour-"hood arose from the local pronunciation of the word 'well', a fountain or "draw-well, 'wall' represents the common Scotch form of the word, being spelt "by the scribes according to the sound of the utterer, and is a good indication "of the district and branch of the family from which it springs."

The English Boswells spelt their name at first, according to the earliest proofs, Bosvil, Boswill, and Bossewell, varied, as hereafter shown, by the examples of the scribes and Heralds at Arms, as Bosevils, Bosvils, Bosseviles, etc., one branch, at the latter end of its existence, spelling it Bosville, no whole family of any branch spelling the name uniformly throughout, the most generally used was Boswell, which in time became universal, with the exception of the small branch adhering to Boswall. Neither Bosvile nor Bosville was ever a fixture, and the names Boswall, Bosvile and Bosville were only so legally fixed by descendants in the maternal line in each case. Consequently, the names spelt Boswall (with the above exceptions), Bosvile, and Bosville, now used by living families, were first legally adopted by predecessors who were not genuine Boswells, in order to gain estates; even in the maternal line they have no relation to the Boswells, as in each case the name has been adopted after several changes, and but for the restrictions to use the name would have died a natural death long since. There are four such divisions: 1st, Bosvilles, consisting of one man and his family; 2nd, Bosviles, consisting of one family only; 3rd, the Donaldson Boswalls, consisting of one family only; and lastly the Houstoun Boswalls, now having several branches, all these four families however inherit what were once real Boswell estates. None of these families have any relationship or affinity to each other, beyond cousinship of a very remote degree, which it would be difficult to define. The direct line of Boswells, still spelling their name Boswall, must necessarily be left out of this work, as now by ancient usage the name may be taken as fixed; this work follows Boswells only, and I show where all deviations arise.

The Record Society in their publication of the Edinburgh Commissariat, giving the names in Testaments of these Kirkcaldy Boswells (who are descendants of the Balmuto family), shows the worst spelling of the Boswells in any place, scarcely two names being spelt alike, or that of the same individual twice following. Some Boswells have changed into Buswells, having like the Boswalls, no knowledge of their ancient ancestors; these being so very obscure, I have not thought it worth the trouble to trace them, their names being now fixed like the Boswalls; accidentally I traced one Buswell, perhaps the ancestor of all of that name; he was of the Warmsworth Boswells, and died in 1632, he used the coat and crest of that branch of the family. There has been confusion throughout, until it has been, I may say, universally settled to Boswell. It was the practice of the Heralds and Antiquarians formerly, to spell all names alike of the various families in their genealogies, probably for uniformity's sake; this would have a tendency for those living at the time of the Visitations, etc., to spell accordingly. I have found by experience that no other course can be pursued so satisfactorily as before stated, the same individual's name is so often spelt differently in Baptism, Marriage, and Burial Registers, or other documents.

The earliest genealogy by one of the family that I have heard of, is that by George the Parson of Auchterderran, who was the ninth son of David Boswell, of Balmuto, by Elizabeth Montcrief, his wife. This was made out in 1593, but of the Scotch branch only. It is often quoted by Martin Simpson, Nesbett, and other eminent antiquarians, Simpson especially, who was engaged by Walter Boswell, of Balbarton, to make out the Scottish genealogy from the family writs, etc., all of which were scrutinised by him. I imagine he (George) spelt all his names Boiswell, as I infer from extracts in the beginning of his genealogy, thus: "Hector Boetius and Hollinshead "in their histories, state that the first of this surname who was known was "of the French nation, and that it may reasonably be supposed and presumed "that one country hath been the common parent of Abbervile, Somerville, "Umpfravil, Boisvil, Colvil, Granvile, Melvil, etc., etc., adopted from their "estates and residences, and that Boisvil and Bofseville are one and the same "as shall appear from credible authority. According to his version, the "national and primitive pronunciation was 'Boisville' which, to his sense and "his authors signifies 'The wood of, or near a town,' but what his proper "name, his past circumstances or character were, who was author to this

"surname or otherwise is not discovered, neglect, accident and distance of time "have rendered obscure."

These extracts are from others, who refer to his genealogy, but the original genealogy I have been unable to find, the only one of real imporance, therefore my reference is but second-hand. George had not the same knowledge or opportunities of search as after ages possessed, to get the clue, besides, his searches were entirely local, he not having the means of searching the English records, consequently he skipped the succession from the original Sieur de Bofseville to Robert de Bosville, the founder of the Scotch branch.

Now it is entirely the reverse, for we have so many Records, MSS., etc., to consult, that the number to peruse present an opposite difficulty in order to alight upon those having relation to the information required. We find on referring to George's Will dated 1597, now in the Register Office, Edinburgh, that his name is there spelt in the body of the Will, Boiswell, and, from the writing, it is difficult to say whether the sixth letter is an "E" or "A", unfortunately his signature is absent. There is another conclusion that George's spelling was Boisville or Boiswell, the following being a copy of the inscription on a cousin's tombstone to be seen in the churchyard of Auchtertule, Fife, within a mile of Balmuto Hall:

"Heir lyis the Honorabill David Boisville
of Kirktoun
Qu ha decessit the 4 day of Ianvar 1606."

His Coat of Arms is engraved on the stone, quarterly 1st and 4th three cinquefoils en fesse, 2nd and 3rd, a Lion rampant, with the initials D on one side of the shield, and B on the other; underneath is another Coat, bearing a two-headed eagle displayed, with the initials A on one side, and B on the other, for Agnes Balmano, his wife.

The earliest genealogist that I have found for the name is William Flower, Norry King of Arms, who in his official visitation of Yorkshire 1563-4, made out a long list of the English branch, then all residing in Yorkshire, in which all are spelt Boswyl. The next genealogist is Robert Glover, Somerset Herald and Deputy Norry King of Arms, who on his visitation of Yorkshire 1584-5, drew up a long list of the same families, spelling all Bosvile. Chapter II will contain his Great Genealogy of the Boswells as it is named, with explanations, as it has been mainly the cause of so much mystery regarding the early family, confusing all subsequent genealogists on account of its glaring fabrications, and thereby putting everyone off the true scent. Berry made out the Kent Boswells' genealogy, in which he spells them Boswell and Boseville, these families being juniors of the Yorkshire family of preceding visitations.

Hunter made out in six divisions an English genealogy in his "South Yorkshire," spelling all Bosvile, after Glover, whom he condemns yet follows.

Wainwright made out an English genealogy, spelling all Bosvill. There are many others, the originals of which are chiefly in the Library MS. department B.M. The latter Heralds, as well as Burke and others, spell without any system the old name, chiefly using Boswell from the first.

Several other fragmentary genealogies of the Scotch branch have been made out by various antiquarians, and by the Auchinleck family, notably by Dr. John Boswell, brother of Lord Auchinleck, 1740. Next, Robert Boswell W.S., and deputy Lord Lyon of Scotland, 1770 or thereabout; next, John James Boswell, advocate 1835, all these spelling the name Boswell after the 14th Century.

The Revd. John Brook, an antiquarian and a descendant of the family of Brook the Herald, compiled an English genealogy about 1695, with Coats and Crests of the family, and alliances of Godfrey Boswell, of Gunthwaite, followed out by the Revd. P. John Chas. Brook in 1772, and assisted by Godfrey Boswell from the family documents in his charter chest, etc. This will also be described in Chapter II, as in the earlier history they were guided by Glover's Great Genealogy before named. I however take these two Brook compilations as otherwise worthy of reliance. In it the names are variously spelt; Bosvile, Bosevile, Bofsevile, and Boswell, not once "Bosville" as at present used by the owner of that estate, a descendant of the Macdonalds. Godfrey Boswell at that time was by far the largest land-owner of the family, having immense estates in Yorkshire, most of which have since been diverted to other families, and are now covered by populous towns.

In my revised Genealogical Tree I spell all alike Boswell for uniformity, after the 14th century. In the History and Genealogical Tables I follow out the principle in transcribing all Documents and Registers as well as from Cantuariensi; Roberto episcopo Lincolniensi; Hillario episcopo Cicestrensi; Thoma cancellario; Willielmo comite Warenn; Henrico de Essex, constabulario; Reginaldo de Warrenna; Richardo de Lucy; Richardo de Humet, constab; Willielmo Martell; Manasero Biset, dapifero; Warino filio Geraldi, camerario, Faremusa; Willielmo de Kaisneto apud Glocester.

Deeds relating to the foundation of Faversham Abbey, situated in the County of Kent, founded [confirmed] in the year 1158.

Charter of King Henry II.

Henry King of England and Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine and Count of Anjou to the archbishops, bishops, abbots, earls, barons, judges, viscounts, and all his faithful servants, both French and English, of the whole realm of England, greeting. Know that I have granted and confirmed, at the prayer and petition of my kinsman William Earl Warrenne, to the monks of Faversham, who serve God at that place after the order of the Cluniacs, the same Abbey of Faversham which King Stephen founded in that same Faversham Manor, where my kinsfolk rest, namely King Stephen, Queen Matilda his wife, and their son Eustace; I further bequeath to them as a perpetual endowment, for the good of my soul, and those of my relations and ancestors Kings of England the aforesaid Manor of Faversham with all things belonging to it. I grant further that their people may be free and undisturbed through the whole realm of England from tallages, tolls, danegelds, and all exactions as they were in the time of my grandfather King Henry. I further allow them one festival of eight days in every year, which shall begin with the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, I bequeath and confirm to them besides the Manor of Treungla with all its belongings, which Queen Matilda gave to them, and the lands which she herself purchased from Fulcon of Newenham and gave to them, namely, Burdifield, Kingsdown, and Chatham, which Richard Lucy gave them for the good of his soul and for the good of the soul of the above-mentioned Queen, and the lands which Randolph Pychot gave them, namely Monkton, and the bequest which William de Boseville gave them in London and in Southwark, with the grants of the above-mentioned Queen, and the land which Abbot Clarembald purchased from [Teia?] and the mill which William my brother gave them of Westbrook in Ospringe with all their belongings, and the mill of Godwinstow and Bossindene with all their belongings which Abbot Clarembald purchased from Fulk son of Richard de Boseville.

Faversham hold all these above-mentioned properties by good title and in peace, freedom, quiet, and honour, both hill and dale, both fields and parks, both waters and mills, with highways and byways, with pools and fish-ponds, harbours and markets, in all places and in all circumstances, with soc and sac, toll and custom, and all the liberties and free customs with which the rest of the church in the realm of England holds property, securely, freely, and undisturbed, as their charters which they have thereon testify. Witnessed under the hands of Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury; Robert, Bishop of Lincoln; Hillary, Bishop of Chichester; Thomas, Chancellor of England; William Warren, Earl of Surrey; Rich. de Lucy, Henry of Essex, High Constables; Richard de Hunnet; William Martell; Manassah Biset, Butler; Reginald de Warrenne, the son of Gerald Lord Faremusa, Chamberlain; William of Caisnet, near Gloucester.

Clarembald prior of Bermondsey, received his benediction as first Abbot of Faversham from Archbishop Theobald on November 11th, 1147, at the high altar of the Church of Canterbury, having first there made his profession of canonical obedience to the archbishop and his successors; at which ceremony were present Queen Matilda herself, with the Bishops of Worcester, Bath, Exeter, and Chichester.

Faversham Church of St. Nicholas has a number of fine and interesting mural monuments; King Stephen built the Abbey of Faversham [1147], in which he and his Queen Matilda and their son Eustace were buried, and many other noble personages, amongst them Clarembald Boswell, the first prior of the Abbey. The Abbot was mitred and during the reign of Edwards I and III sat in thirteen several parliaments before the monastery collapsed for want of funds or proper management.

The following charter to Geoffrey de Mandeville is in MS. by Ralph Brook, Herald at Arms. I insert here a specimen of the writing of the time, the charter itself is a copy of the original, and may be seen B.M., MS. 4757, page 20.

For a full account of this Geoffrey de Mandeville, including this Charter in full, I would refer you to the book by J. H. Round, published 1892, viz., "Geoffrey de Mandeville."

In the struggle between King Stephen and his rival, the Empress Maud, daughter of Henry I and mother of Henry II, who landed in England 1139 to assert her claim against Stephen, Geoffrey de Mandeville was a prominent partizan, first on one side, then on the other successively, a friend and traitor to each, yet rewarded by both. As Earl of Essex, a title assumed during the struggle, he was one of the most powerful men in the country. The Empress Maud granted him great possessions and privileges, with a right of enfeoffed Knights (20) milites feodates. Stephen outbid her by granting him sixty Knights, which were not only of practical benefit, but gave him increased power. In the first place Geoffrey became entitled to what may be termed the feudal profits, such as relief from hire sixty fees. In the second place he secured sixty Knights to serve beneath his banner in war, and in the then abnormal condition of affairs and utter weakness of the Crown, this gave him the power to act as arbiter between the two rivals for the throne. His castle was at Walden in Essex, and he founded the Abbey of Walden, and for a time his son had command of the Tower of London. Geoffrey came to utter ruin, and was killed with nearly all his followers in the Isle of Ely in Cambridgeshire, where he had devastated the country in revolt. His title and succession died with him. He was buried in the Temple Church, London, much against the wishes and attempts of the Prior and Monks of Walden, who tried to get possession of his, their patron's, remains. His effigy in armour lies on the floor of the Temple Church, and is, I believe, the only one of the eight lying there that is identified, by the emblems of his coat armour.

BUNWELL.

"In Doomsday, Haberham or the Holy Stone, from some remarkable "stone crosses erected there. This town comprehended several villas, berewicks, "or lesser hamlets, which now are the several manors, viz.: Bunwell, Hadde- "stone, Bosevile's, Perishalls, and Banyards. The church is dedicated to "St. Michael, and had fully fifty acres of glebe belonging to it at the Conquest, "when there were but three manors, to each of which a part of the advowson "belonged, but Roger Fitz Peter Fitz Osbert bought a part of Walkeline de "Bosevile, so that he had one moiety and Sir Robert Banyard the other. "When Norwich Doomsday was made, Roger Fitz Osborn was patron, and "the Rector had a house and forty acres of glebe; it was first valued at "twenty marks, afterwards at thirty, without the portion; and the portion of "the Prior of Lewes was first laid at six, afterwards at ten marks, and "consisted of two third parts of the great tithes of all the demeans of "Bosevile's manor, which were given to the monks of Castleacre (a cell attached "to Lewes, in Sussex) by Walkeline de Boseville and Lady Agatha de "Boseville; and Pandulf, Bishop of Norwich, confirmed the agreement made "by the judges assigned by the Pope for this purpose, on a suit between the "monks of Castleacre and Allan de Beccles, rector there (see Registers of "Castleacre, fo. 57, a. 119-22) that this rector and his successors should for "ever receive all the tithes of all the demeans and tenants of Bosevile's "Manor, paying to Castleacre Convent 30d. every Easter, and 30d. every "Michaelmas, which sums are paid at this day by the rector to the Duke of "Norfolk in right of the dissolved monastery of Castleacre, which was granted "to his family at the Dissolution. In 1348 mention is made of Edmund de "Thorpe, as of his manor of Fundenhall, John de Norwich, and others, "amongst which is a quarter of a fee in Bunwell by William de Boswell."

The Boswell Museum

Scotland

by Dorothy Dunbar

Calling all Boswells! A museum which should be of interest to you has been opened in the village of Auchinleck, in Ayrshire.

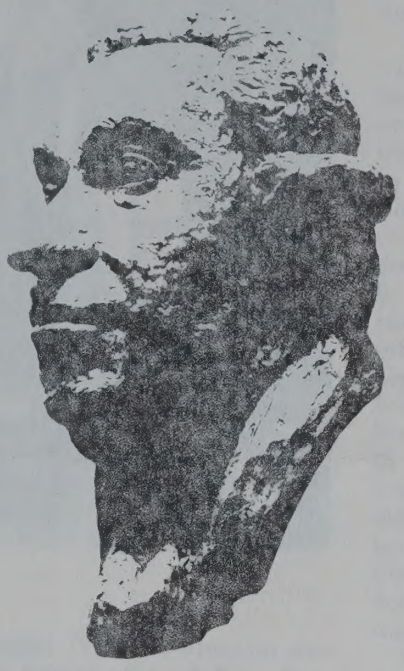
Perhaps you already know that the seat of the Boswell family is Auchinleck House, standing in its spacious grounds near the Lugar Burn. The present house is the third to be built on the site, and was built by Sir Alexander Boswell, Lord Auchinleck, and father of James who wrote those books about Dr. Samuel Johnson. Three miles down the road is the old Barony church, and it is this building which has now been turned into a pleasing museum to that well-known member of the Boswell family. The people from 'Affleck Big Hoose', as it is familiarly known in the district, worshipped in it for many years, each generation doing something to enhance the building . . . presenting gifts, enlarging it, and finally building on a Mausoleum where lie the mortal remains of James and his family.

In 1839 the new Barony Church, built a few yards from the old one, was opened and the congregation moved over to worship there. From then on, the old building was allowed to moulder away until it stood, a ruin, beside the aged gravestones . . . very much akin, really, to the old Alloway Kirk which is one of the tourist attractions in Ayrshire.

And it might still have been in this ruinous condition if a Yorkshireman, Gordon Hoyle, had not married an Auchinleck lass and settled down in the village to run a wool shop. He quickly made himself familiar with all the tales about the people who had lived in the Big Hoose, especially the famous biographer.

Then in 1970, Gordon Hoyle and two other friends launched the Auchinleck Boswell Society. The Barony Church gave them permission to take over the ruined kirk, and the first newsletter went out to Boswells who had any connection with the Auchinleck family, together with an appeal for money to start the rebuilding.

The first Annual Boswell Dinner was held a year later. By that time membership of the Society had reached almost two hundred, and



James Boswell (1740-1795)

Boswells from many parts of the world gathered in a near-by hotel. The date was August 20th, the day on which, two centuries before, Dr. Johnson had set out with James Boswell on the historic Tour to the Hebrides.

With the money which came in the Mausoleum was cleaned up, revealing the Boswell crest on the North wall. This shows the coat of arms of the Boswells and the Montgomeries . . . (James Boswell married his cousin Margaret Montgomerie) and has a hound on either side of it, with a hooded hawk above. This hooded hawk is a sign connected with anything Boswellian, and has been used as such for many years.

Work was also begun on rebuilding the crowstepped gable containing the bell tower. The bell, dated 1641, had been blown down in a gale some years before, and now is on show in the museum.

While all this went on, Boswelliana was building up in Mr. Hoyle's home. When I first went to interview him some years ago, cupboards were packed full of books, manuscripts and papers relating to the family, including a second edition of the Tour to the Hebrides and a ninth edition of Dr. Johnson's dictionary. The attic of the house was full of paintings, china, and other objet d'art connected with the family. I was particularly interested in a large punch-bowl, made in Canton by order of a certain Bruce

The old Barony Church, Auchinleck, restored by the Auchinleck Boswell Society and now used as a museum of mementos of the Boswell family. On the right is the Boswell family mausoleum containing the family vaults.

Boswell, who was the mate on an East Indiaman. It was made as a present for the young man's father who was a physician, and it is beautifully decorated with the family crest, and details of Dr. Boswell's family. Inside on the bottom is inscribed the following toast . . .

'Here's tae ye,
Weel may ye a' be,
Ill may ye never see.
Here's tae yer rowan tree.
God bless the king hye,
Our absent friends and companie.'

One of the paintings is of this Bruce Boswell's wife, and it is reputed to have been painted by Allan Ramsay.

On this visit, the old church was still very much a ruin, though electricity had been installed. Obviously a lot still needed doing, before the Society's dream could be realised. Enthusiasm was growing, but although money came in, it was still very far from the target.

However, the local district council became interested, seeing that the completed work would be an added tourist attraction to 'the Burns country', and managed to provide grant-aid. Through the local Jobscreation scheme the roofing and the inside work was accomplished.

So, eight years after the three enthusiasts had launched the Auchinleck Boswell Society, on Saturday 19th August 1978, the Museum was formally opened by Lord Ross, Senator of the College of Justice in Scotland. It was the culmination of years of hard work, of hopes and frustrations. At the lunch afterwards, tribute was paid to Gordon Hoyle, who all along had been the moving spirit in this project. Considering that he is over eighty years of age, what he has achieved in Auchinleck is remarkable. He has given the village a pride in its past, and something tangible to nurture.

The Museum itself is a welcoming place, emanating a warmth which the visitor cannot fail to notice on entering. A small gallery contains cases of the books and manuscripts, illuminated scrolls, burgess tickets, etc. Downstairs the cases contain all the other Boswelliana which reposed for so long in the Hoyle attic. On the walls are the portraits, old maps of Ayrshire, the Boswell family tree . . . James Boswell claimed to be related to all the Royal houses of Europe. There are photographs of Auchinleck House, with details of the elaborate plasterwork on the ceilings and fireplaces, and the gracious sweep of the staircase. It is rather sad that only in photographs can the inside of this house now be seen. For the mansion still stands grand and imposing, at the head of the long drive, but there are empty windows which look out over neglected gardens, and no children run through the rooms or play on the lawn. It is not habitable any longer. The last tenant, Mrs. Patricia Boswell is the Honorary Vice-chairman of the Society and now lives near Mauchline.

Also in the Museum is a bust of James Boswell, and next to it, one of his son, Alexander, who was a poet, printer and publisher. And this is where the Boswell Museum is linked to that of Burns . . . Alexander Boswell, just like Gordon Hoyle two centuries later, had a dream. His dream was of a monument to Rabbie by the banks of the River Doon. And, just like Gordon, he gathered some interested friends round him and began to plan a building. When the foundation stone was laid he and his friends held a sort of 'Burns Supper' in Ayr, at which he favored the company with his own verses. But alas, he never saw the completion of his dream, as he was killed fighting the second-last duel to take place in Scotland, in 1822. The monument was opened to the public a year later.

The whole area round the Auchinleck estate is worth exploring. In the Museum you can see a model of the district with the early castles and buildings. Some day, perhaps, the district of Ayrshire will have a Boswell Heritage Trail as well as a Burns one. It will lead from this Museum the three straight miles of the 'Via Sacra' to the Auchinleck Estate with its grand mansion, its mysterious caves connected with Sir William Wallace and Peden the Covenantor, and its ice-houses where venison was kept stored for the winter in bygone days . . . Freezers are not such modern inventions!

So, if your name is Boswell . . . and even if it isn't . . . why not take a trip to Ayrshire this year . . . not just to explore the Burns country. The Boswell Museum is well worth a visit. And if you were to go in August you might be able to attend the Society's Annual Dinner.

If you are interested in the Society, then get in touch with Gordon Hoyle, Secretary of the Auchinleck Boswell Society, in Auchinleck, Ayrshire. He will welcome your interest, and you will enjoy seeing another bit of Scotland's story come to life in the Museum.

Normandy Roots

Boswell

By Archie McKerracher

Many Scottish clan and family names have their roots in Normandy. This area of northern France was colonised by land hungry Vikings in the early 10th century - the name Normandy means Home of the Northmen. Their leader, Rollo the Viking, signed a treaty with King Charles the Simple in 911 A.D. which gave the Norsemen a permanent home on French soil.

Over the next century and a half the Vikings intermarried with the local population and adopted the French language. Rollo's descendants became Dukes of Normandy and the other Viking leaders became knights who controlled their local fief from a wooden castle built on an earthen mound, and gave allegiance to the Duke. The Vikings absorbed the local culture so well that their sons had to be taught their original Norse tongue as a second language. The Normans became Christians and built many fine abbeys and monasteries. They were excellent administrators, organising society on a feudal system, and establishing laws for the government of the land. Their military prowess became renowned throughout Europe. They wore tall, conical helmets with a distinctive nose guard, shirts of chain mail, and carried long kite shaped shields and battle axes. This battle garb can also be seen on many gravestones on Scotland's western seaboard where the Norse influence was also strong. In France, however, they fought on horseback and used their disciplined cavalry with devasting effect.

In 1066 Duke William of Normandy, Rollo's grandson, set sail in a fleet of Viking longships to conquer England. His Army of perhaps around 8,000 was gathered from all over northern Europe and included most of the leading Norman noble families. From the descendants of three knights who sailed with William the Conqueror - de Brus;' de Baillieul; and a Breton noble; were to come the Scottish kings of Bruce; Balliol; and the ill fated Stuart dynasty.

After his victory at the Battle of Hastings William proclaimed himself king of England and rewarded his noble followers with grants of English land. Younger knights could advance themselves by volunteering to hold estates on the wild Welsh border. One such was nicknamed 'Le Gros Venoir' - The Fat Hunter. His present day descendant, the Duke of Westminster, reputedly Britain's richest man, still lives there and his family name of Grosvenor derives from his ancestors' nickname. Similarly, the very English Christian name of Algernon comes from the Norman-French 'Al Grenon' - The Moustached One. Another nickname 'le Grand' - the Big One - was given to a knight who held land in Lincolnshire and whose descendants later moved to Scotland where ''le Grand'' became altered to 'Grant'. Sir Laurence le Grant was Sheriff of Inverness in 1258. The Normans delighted in nicknames and puns. Robert de Comines, who sailed with the Conqueror in 1066, and was created Earl of Northumbria in 1069, took his name from his fief of Comines in Flanders. Other Normans soon punned his territorial title into 'Cummin', an aromatic herb, and from this comes the modern surname of Cumming. The three apparent wheat-sheafs on the Cumming coat of arms were originally meant to indicate bundles of the herb. William de Comyn, a prominent churchman, came to Scotland in 1124 and became Chancellor. Richard de Comyn married the granddaughter of King Donald III in 1144 and thus his descendant became one of the competitors for the Scottish throne in 1291. The Comyns became the most powerful family in Scotland by the 13th century, and nearly a quarter of all Scottish earls were Cummins. Their power was destroyed by King Robert the Bruce after he won the Battle of Bannockburn 1314, although the Badenoch family survived to become a Scottish Clan in its own right. Sir William Gordon Cumming, chief of the clan, still holds the ancestral lands of Altyre.

Some of the Normans took their title from their newly acquired estates in England. One Anglo-Norman knight styled himself 'de Graegham' after his new manor which derived from the Anglo-Saxon words meaning Gray Home. His descendants moved to Scotland where the name became altered to Graham. Another Norman took his title 'de Ramesai' from his new estates in Huntingdonshire and when his descendants moved to Scotland this became Ramsay. Another took his title from the manor of Hambledon in Leicestershire, and this became altered to the historic Scots name of Hamilton. Walter de Hamilton being first recorded in Scotland in 1200. The present Duke Hamilton is the head of this family.

David I, King of Scots, (1084-1153), spent much of his youth in England, and was brother in law to the Anglo-Norman King Henry I of England. He had also married a Norman heiress, and greatly admired the efficient Norman administration. He was Prince of Cumbria before becoming king and gathered around him many young Norman knights who helped him control his lands. The kingdom of Scotland which he inherited in 1124 was, by contrast, a savage and wild land divided into seven provinces each ruled by a Celtic sub king. Each was prone to rise in rebellion. Thus when David returned to Scotland as king he brought with him the young Anglo-Norman knights who had been his companions in England. He gave them grants of land and privilege and over the next fifty years they were to find most of the great families of lowland Scotland, among them being Bruce, Balliol, Boswell, Chisholm, Crichton, Comyn, Fraser, Gordon, Gifford, Lindsay, Maxwell, Menzies, Melville, Montgomerie, Oliphant, Seton, Sinclair, Turnbull and many others.

The new Norman-Scots began to build great abbeys like Kelso, Melrose, Holyrood, Brechin and Dunblane and brought in monkish communities from France. They established Sheriffdoms to administer justice and Burghs to regulate trading and introduced the feudal system based on land. These incomers married into the local Celtic aristocracy and in many cases acquired a ready made tribal clan who in later years would adopt their chief's territorial title as a surname. Within a generation these Norman Scots would become almost more Scottish than the original inhabitants.

Some younger sons also acquired land and took their title from local place names. The Gordons took their name from Gurdon in Berwickshire in the Scottish borders. This word comes from the Ancient British 'Gor din' - Great Hill Fort. The Gordons were to acquire the traditional clan lands in the north in 1320 where they became so powerful the chiefs were called 'Cocks o' the North'. Similarly the family of Chisholm took their name from Cheseholm in Roxburghshire, also in the Borders. It means 'the waterside meadow good for producing cheese'.

Some gave their own name to the lands they acquired. A minor knight called Hugo acquired land in Renfrewshire and established a small hamlet which he called in Norman-French 'Hugo's ville' - Hugo's town. In time this became altered to the Anglo-Saxon word for a township - 'ton'. 'Hugo's ton' eventually became Huston and then the modern Houston. The bold Hugo is remembered worldwide today for after him is named the city of Houston, Texas, the mission control centre for the United States space programme. Similarly another knight called Maccus founded a hamlet in the borderland between England and Scotland and named it 'Maccus's ville' which in time became 'Maxwell', and his family grew to be one of the most powerful in the area.

But the majority of the Scots names that derive from the incoming Norman-Scots have their roots in Normandy and the places from which they sprang are still in existence. The port of Dieppe, a popular entry point for modern Scots holidaymakers, is a good place to start. In the church of St. Jacques here is the Scottish chapel, burial place of Bishop Reid and the Earls of Cassilis and Rothes, sent to witness the marriage of Mary Queen of Scots to the Dauphin of France.

The main D1 road running south from Dieppe by-passes by the little village of Mesnieres en Bray from which the name of Menzies comes. The first recorded of that name in Scotland, Robert de Mesnieres or Meyneris, became Chancellor of Scotland in 1249 and was granted lands around Weem in Perthshire where Castle Menzies stands today. A short detour from here is the little village of Bailleul-Neuville, original home of the Balliol family who provided two Kings of Scots - John Balliol from 1292-1296 and Edward Balliol from 1332-1333. The first in Scotland was Bernard de Bailleul in the reign of David I. Balliol College at Oxford University was established by John de Balliol in 1282. In the tiny chapel here lies the remains of Jeanne, sister of Edward Balliol.

Another short detour, west of Mesnieres, leads to Fresles from which derives the proud Scots name of Fraser. This is probably another pun on a place name for a similiar sounding word is Fraises meaning Strawberries and the Fraser coat of arms portrays this plant. Simon de Fresles, or Frissel, was granted land in West Lothian in 1160, and about 1360 his descendant Simon Fraser married another Norman Scots heiress and through her acquired land around Beauly where the Frasers remain today. The present 22nd chief of Clan Fraser is Brigadier Simon Fraser, 17th Lord Lovat.

Near Neufchatel en Bray is the village of Mortemer from whence come the Scottish Mortimers. Ralph de Mortemer followed the Conqueror in 1066, and his descendant came to Scotland in the reign of David I. Mortimer's Deep in the Firth of Forth opposite Edinburgh is named after Alan de Mortemer who gifted lands in Fife to the island monastery of Inchcolm Abbey on condition he was buried there. Unfortunately his lead coffin fell overboard and disappeared into the watery depths now called after him.

Back now to Dieppe, and shortly after leaving here on the coastal D75 road is St. Valery with its memorial to the 51st Highland Division which fought a gallant rearguard action here in 1940 until forced to surrender. Nearly all the survivors spent the next five years as P.O.W.'s. A short detour inland is the hamlet of Bosville from whence sprang the famous Norman Scots family of Boswell. They first obtained lands in Berwickshire but by marriage later acquired lands in Fife and Ayrshire.

About 10 kilometres from St. Valery is Malleville, cradle of the Melvilles. Gilfradus de Maleville received lands in Midlothian and Fife from Malcolm IV around 1155. His descendants became Earls of Leven and Melville, and the present holder of the title is Alexander Robert Leslie Melville, 14th Earl of Leven and 13th Earl of Melville.

Forty kilometres south of here on the D142 is Limesay, home of the family who were to become the Scottish Lindsays. Balderic de Limesay arrived in Scotland relatively early around 1086 in the reign of Malcolm III. Sir Walter de Lindsay was appointed a member of the Council of David I. The Lindsays acquired vast lands in Lanarkshire and became Earls of Crawford. They married into the Celtic aristocracy in 1324 and obtained land in Angus and also in the Highlands around Strathnairn. The Lindsays have featured greatly in Scottish history and the present 29th Earl of Crawford, Patrick Lindsay, is the premier Earl of Scotland. Part of the old lands of the Lindsays of Edzell in Angus are now occupied by a US Air Force base.

Across the River Seine the coastal road continues to the medieval port of Honfleur from whence Samuel Champlain sailed from in 1608 to claim Canada for the French. A few miles further on is Dives en Mer from where William the Conqueror's fleet sailed in 1066, although the old port has long since silted up. In the church of Notre Dame here is the Battle Roll of those who sailed, and listed here are the progenitors of many Scottish families.

Further on is the seaside village of Graye from whence comes the name of Gray, later Lords of Kinfauns near Perth in Scotland and Warden of the Border Marches. Angus Diarmid Ian Campbell-Gray, 22nd Lord Gray, is the current head of the family. Beyond this are the Arromanches beaches where the British and Canadian troops stormed ashore on D-Day 1944. Further on is Omaha beach, landing place for the U.S. 5th Corps on D-Day, 1944. Fierce fighting took place around the seaside village of Colleville-sur Mer where there is a large American War Cemetery. From the name of this village comes that of the Scottish Colville family. Gilbert de Colleville accompanied the Conqueror in 1066, and Philip de Colville was granted land in Ayrshire by Malcolm IV around 1160.

A long run up the Contenin peninsula takes one to the town of St. Mere Eglise, the focal point of US Airborne landings and the scene of fierce street fighting by the U.S. 82nd Division on 5/6th June, 1944. Further on, and just off the main Cherbourg road is Brix. At this tiny village are the grass covered ruins of a castle demolished in the 13th century. From here Robert de Brix set out with the Conqueror in 1066 and was granted estates in England. Robert de Brix or Brus came north with David I and in 1124 was given the lands of Annandale in south Scotland. His descendant married Isabella, daughter of David I, and thus their son Robert de Bruce became a competitor for the Scottish throne. It was his son, Robert the Bruce, who became King Robert I after winning Scotland's independence at the Battle of Bannockburn in 1314. East of Brix, and just off the D902, is St. Germain de Tournbeau from whence comes the name of Turnbull. Near Cherbourg is Neauville from where come the Nevilles, and south of here is the village of Le Rozel, cradle of the Scottish Russells.

South now to the town of St. Lo, most of which was destroyed between 3-25 July, 1944 as the U.S. 7th Corps fought to break out to the south. Near here is the village of La Haye-Bellefond, cradle of the Scottish Hays. Haye means a Hedge, or perhaps a defensive stockade such as surrounded Norman castles. The Normandy campaign became known as la Guere de Haies due the problems the Allies had in fighting through the thick hedges surrounding the fields. William de la Haye, Butler of Scotland and first baron of Erroll near Perth, first appeared in Scotland around 1160. He married the Celtic heiress Eva who brought him the Errol lands while his son married Ethna, daughter of the mighty Celtic Earl of Strathearn. The head of the family today is Merlin Sereld Victor Gilbert Hay, 24th Earl of Errol and Hereditary Lord High Constable of Scotland. In this capacity he ranks second only to the Queen when she visits Scotland.

Adjoining the Haye fief in Normandy is Souiles, home of the Soulis family. Nicholas de Soles claimed the Scottish throne in 1290 as a descendant of an illegitimate daughter of Alexander II but was rightly ignored. The Soulis's held the grim and massive Hermitage Castle in the Borders. Near Souiles is the village of Aigneaux where a new castle stands on the site of the original 11th century castle of Herbert d'Aigneaux. His descendants came to Scotland and settled in Galloway. The family is represented today by Sir Crispin Agnew of Lochnaw, Bt, Rothesay Herald of Arms, who is a regular contributor to this magazine. Also near St. Lo is Saint-Clair-sur-Elle whose castle has long disappeared. This was the fief of Richard de St. Clair who sailed with the Conqueror. His descendant Henry de St. Clair received a charter of land around Haddington in East Lothian in 1162, and a descendant acquired the lands of Rosslyn in Midlothian. The chief of the Rosslyn Sinclairs married Lady Isobel, heiress of Caithness and the Orkneys, and was recognised as Jarl of Orkney by the King of Norway. The present chief of the Sinclairs, the 20th Jarl or Earl of Caithness, still lives there.

Heading eastwards and inland is St. Germain de Montgommery, off the D579. This hamlet with the remains of a Norman moated fortification was the fief of the Montgommerys, one of the oldest families in Normandy. Roger de Montgommerei crossed over with the Conqueror and became the 1st Earl of Shrewbury in 1071. His descendant Robert de Montommerie (1103-78) accompanied Walter Fitz Alan, the High Steward, ancestor of the Stuart kings, from Wales to Scotland, and married his daughter. He was granted land in Renfrewshire and Ayrshire where his descendants were created Earls of Eglinton and built the huge but now ruined Eglinton Castle. The present head of the family is Archibald George Montgomerie, 18th Earl.

South of Bernay, on the N138 is Ferrieres, cradle of the Scottish Ferriers. Amfreville to the north is the original home of the de Umfravilles, a Norman family who came to Scotland with

Scotland's Three Roberts

David I and married the Celtic heiress to the ancient Earldom of Angus. They lost everything after opposing Robert the Bruce.

Off the N13 road west of Caen is Rots. Robert de Rots or Ros, from whom the Lowland Rosses come, married Margaret de Brus. The cathedral town of Chartres gives its name to the Charters family while Montalet on the Seine near Meulan gives its name to the family of Maitland. Thomas de Matulent was the first to come to Scotland in the time of William the Lion. His descendants were granted the lands of Lauder in Berwickshire and became Earls and Dukes of Lauderdale, building there the huge Thirlestane Castle. The present head of the family is Patrick Francis Maitland.

South of Montalet and across the Seine is Maule, the fief of the family of that name. Peter de Maule accompanied the Conqueror in 1066. Robert de Maule came to Scotland with David I around 1141. Peter de Maule acquired the lands of Panmure in Angus by marriage to an heiress in 13th century, and their descendants became Earls. A Maule heiress took their lands by marriage into the Norman Scots family of Ramsay. Simon Ramsay, 16th Earl of Dalhousie, still resides on the ancestral lands of the Maules and Ramsays at Brechin Castle.

A few kilometres north east of Rouen is the hamlet of Boissay, the cradle of the powerful Anglo Norman family of Bisset. They obtained land around Beauly and built the abbey there. A Bisset heiress brought the lands of Beauly to the Frasers who hold them still.

North west from Evraux, off the N13 road, is Graveron-Semerville. From here came the Somervilles. Guildhase de Semerville had estates in Yorkshire and was granted 30,000 acres around Carnwath in Lanarkshire by David I. They built Cowthally Castle and became Lords of Carnwath in 1445. The title became extinct on the death of the 18th Earl in 1870.

The remarkable Normans have left their mark on almost every facet of Scottish life-from Sheriffs who administer justice to feu duty paid on land. They have also passed on the name of their original fief in Normandy to millions of Scots all over the world.

Scotland honors the memory of many of her famous sons and daughters by monuments, statues and other durable artifacts. There are, however, surprising omissions of recognition by officialdom and by organizations which have only been amended by the effort of dedicated individuals.

The poet Robert Fergusson, who also coined the phrase "Auld Reekie" for his native Edinburgh, was laid to rest in an unmarked grave in Canongate Kirkyard in 1774, at the tragically early age of 24. Another Robert and a poet, Burns this time, erected a headstone for the grave, paid for out of his own slender purse in 1789, a few years before his own early death, with the words:

This simple stone directs pale Scotia's way
To pour her sorrows o'er her poet's dust

By coincidence, the stonemason's name was Robert Burn. "He was two years in erecting the stone and it was a further two years until he was paid," wrote the poet, "so he and I are quits."

Left to the ravages of time, the grave fell into neglect and another Robert, poet, novelist and man of letters, Louis Stevenson this time, always intended to restore the grave, as "one Edinburgh lad to another", but slender purse, exile through ill-health and his own early death in the South Pacific prevented fulfilment of that intention. More than two hundred years after Robert Fergusson's burial, the Saltire Society, to celebrate its fiftieth anniversary, has rededicated and restored the grave.

Another surprising omission of recognition is now being corrected by planning an open-air memorial in Edinburgh for Robert Louis Stevenson. His sculptured plaque is within St. Giles Cathedral and his mementoes are in Lady Stairs Museum (shared by Sir Walter Scott and Robert Burns). An appeal by the Stevenson Club has raised £50,000 and a design has been chosen by competition. The memorial will be located in Princes Street Gardens and will take the form of a simple inscribed stone within a semi-circle, surrounded by five weeping birch trees, appropriate reminders of Stevenson's love of nature. As he wrote in Edinburgh: Picturesque Notes: "All the world and his wife would flock into these gardens in the cool of the evening to hear cheerful music, to sip pleasant drinks, to see the moon rise from behind Arthur's Seat and shine upon the spires and monuments."

These examples in Scotland's capital are connected with literature. They are demonstrations of how the people of Scotland are responsive to restoring the country to its proper position as a cultural entity. The Saltire Society derives its name from the oblique white cross on a blue background which is the emblem of St. Andrew, patron saint of Scotland. Its aims are quoted as a deep concern with all things Scottish: Scotland's past, present and future. It has truly been said that a nation that forgets its past is dead. The Saltire Society seeks to revive the memory of famous Scots and to make the nation conscious of its heritage, but it looks back to the past only to move forward, to preserve all that is best in Scottish tradition and to encourage every new development which can strengthen and enrich the country's cultural life.

THE BOSWELL STORY

Into an America of only thirteen million people compared with one hundred fifty million today, when Andrew Jackson was President, the South was a slave-holding oligarchy, Texas still belonged to Mexico, the Great West was a wilderness and the industrial revolution had yet to penetrate what was still an agricultural nation; into an America with only twenty-three miles of railroad, William Boswell was born April 16, 1834, in ~~Harris~~ Talbot County, Georgia. He was the son of George and Carolyn Bates Boswell. His sisters were Fanny, Matt, Jane and Becky. His brothers were John and Jimmie.

HANAH, MARTHA CAROLINE AMANDA SUSAN + GEORGE

At the age of twenty-two on November 16, 1856, Bill Boswell was married to Missouria McCollough. To this union was born seven children. The three born before the Civil War were:

William Brantley Boswell, August 31, 1857
Infant daughter who died at birth, 1859
Mary Susan Boswell, January 4, 1861

On July 4th of 1861, when Mary Susan was six months old and William Brantley was four, William Boswell at the age of twenty-seven, enlisted in the Confederate Army under Captain William McCollough, his brother-in-law, and served until 1865.

Abraham Lincoln had taken office as President of the United States in January of 1861, but the thirty-four states were far from "united." On both sides, there was the usual belief entertained at the beginning of all great wars that it would be "short."

William Boswell was in the 35th Georgia Regiment, Company K, Thomas' Brigade, Hills' Division, Stonewall Jackson's Corps. He was in the first battle at Mine Run, Virginia, and from there fought in many, many battles, among them the battle at Manassas, Virginia. Although this battle was considered a disgraceful disaster for the North, the Yankees pulled themselves together with a grim determination which they had not felt before, whereas the Southerners were misled into believing that they could relax their efforts and that the war was practically won. This was a mistaken idea, however, and four years of bitter struggle ensued. Bill Boswell fought at Chancelorsville, Frederick, Harper's Ferry, Virginia, The Wilderness, Gettysburg and many, many other places. Chancelorsville, Virginia, was the scene of a three days' Battle which forced the Union forces back across the river with a severe loss of over 17,000 men. It might have been a complete rout had not the Confederates suffered one of the heaviest possible strokes in the wounding of Stonewall Jackson the first evening of the fight. The General with a small party had got in front of his own lines. On galloping back in the dark, he and his escort were mistaken for Federals and were fired on by their own men. Jackson died eight days later of pneumonia.

Matters went from bad to worse and after Bill Boswell spent some time in the hospital in Virginia recovering from wounds suffered in the Battle of South Ann and the Battle of Gettysburg, he recovered and returned to battle to do last picket duty for General Robert E. Lee's army near Farmersville, Virginia, on the night of April 8, 1865. The Southern army was melting rapidly by desertions and on April 9, 1865, Lee asked for a meeting with Grant at Appomattox Court House. The Confederate troops were to be released on parole after the surrender and were allowed to keep their own horses. Rations were supplied them since many were without food for days. Lee rode back to his own lines after the surrender and scarcely able to speak for feeling, he could only say to his veterans, "We have fought through the war together. I have done the best I could for you. My heart is too full to say more." In the course of a few weeks, the other armies had also surrendered and the trial by combat had ended.

William Boswell returned to his wife and two children to attempt to resume normal living and to attend to his farm. Mary Susan was about five years old, now, and Grandmother and Grandfather McCollough with whom Bill's wife and children had lived while he was at war, asked that she be allowed to stay with them, since they lived near the Boswell farm. Later,

Daniel Evans Boswell was born March 23, 1866
Caroline Amanda Boswell was born April 4, 1868
Fannie Maude Boswell was born June 24, 1870
Fletcher Missouria Boswell was born September 2, 1872

On ~~March~~ May 13, 1870, Bill and his wife went to visit her mother about a mile from their home one Sunday afternoon and left Brantley, who by now was twelve years old, at home and gave him the keys to the house. This was after slavery days and everything had to be locked. An eighteen year old Negro boy was at the home as he worked for Bill. When Bill and Missouria returned home and called for Brantley, he did not answer. Missouria said, "I'll gather the eggs while you look for him." On going into the henhouse, she saw Brantley lying on the floor dead. The Negro boy had shot him while Brantley lay on top of the henhouse playing his flute. The Negro was later captured and given a life sentence in the penetentiary.

Lieutora went from bad to worse and after Bill Boswell again came in the hospital in Virginia recovering from wounds suffered in the Battle of South Ann and the Battle of Gettysburg, he recovered and returned to battle to do last pistol duty for General Robert E. The Confederate army was melting rapidly by desertions and on April 9, 1865, Lee ended for a meeting with Grant at Appomattox Court House. Mary Susan was about five years old, now, and Grandmother and Grandfather McCullough with whom Bill's wife and children had lived while he was at war, asked that she be allowed to stay with them, since they lived near the Boswell farm. Later,

Caroline Amanda Boswell was born April 4, 1868
Fannie Claude Boswell was born June 24, 1870
Fletcher Lafayette Boswell was born September 2, 1872

On March 15, 1870, Bill and his wife went to visit her mother about a mile from their home one Sunday afternoon and left Brantley, who by now was twelve years old, at home and gave him the keys to the house. BURIED IN WAVERLY HALL, GA.

If the Civil War had brought its hardships to Bill Boswell, he was yet to face more, for on July 9, 1874, Missouri died leaving him with five children from two to thirteen years old. With the help of kind friends, among them Rebecca Jane Randall Morgan, Mr. Boswell was able to care for the children until December 2, 1874, when he and Rebecca were married. Rebecca was thirty years old when she married Mr. Boswell and had done dressmaking extensively. Those of us who remember her must assume that - although she was at an age to be considered an "old maid" - it was no doubt by choice - for she was a handsome, if determined, person. At any rate, she became a good mother for the five children: Susie, Dan, Carrie, Maude and Fletcher. Five children were born to Becky and Bill in Harris County, Georgia:

George Samuel Boswell born September 22, 1875
John William Boswell born August 27, 1877
Morgan Wilborn Boswell born October 15, 1879
Harriet Rebecca Boswell born May 17, 1881
Mattie Kate Boswell born August 21, 1883.

The years were hard immediately after the Civil War and more and more of Bill's friends were migrating to Texas, railroads having been built toward the west by now. He and Becky decided to take all of the children, except eighteen-year old Carrie who had married Bill Reedy November 5, 1885, and twenty-five year old Susie who lived with the McCollroughs, and move to Texas. There it seemed the opportunity was greater to support his large family.

In December 1886, therefore, William and Rebecca with their eight children, one nephew - Dick Boswell -, one grandnephew - Dick's son -, (Jim, three years old) left Harris County, Georgia, for Mansfield, Texas. The trip was made by train which was fired and heated with coal. Everything was black with coal smoke. The trip took about three days and nights on the road. With a crowd of this size, many things were bound to happen. Baskets of food had to be carried for this large family. At Little Rock, Arkansas, the train had to lay over for a few hours. As they were getting off the train onto the platform at the depot, John Will Boswell who was nine missed the platform and down he went. George who was eleven followed him, and when Mrs. Boswell got them out from under the dirty platform, they were black from head to toe. Mrs. Boswell was inclined to be a pretty proud woman and wanted her children to always look spic and span. She got them inside the depot and cleaned them thoroughly, but by this time everybody was hungry and all the food which had been brought in the baskets was eaten. Mr. Boswell sent the oldest boy, Dan, who was twenty, to see if he could find anything to buy to eat. He came back with a baked duck! After they had eaten, Mrs. Boswell put them all to bed

If the Civil War had brought its hardships to Bill Boswell, he was yet to free more, for on July 9, 1874, Mississippi died lonving him with five children from two to thirteen years old. With the help of kind friends, among them Rebecca Jane Mundell Morgan, Mr. Boswell was able to care for the children until December 2, 1874, when he and Rebecca were married. Rebecca was thirty years old when she married Mr. Boswell and had done tremendous outdoorwork. Those of us who remember her must recall that - although she was at an age to be considered an "old maid" - it was no doubt by choice - for she was a handsome, if determined, person. As any rate, she became a good mother for the five children: Susie, Ben, Carrie, Linnie and Pickens. Five children were born to Rody and Bill in Harris County, Georgia:

George Samuel Boswell born September 22, 1875
John William Boswell born August 27, 1877
Morgan Wilborn Boswell born October 15, 1879
Harriet Rebecca Boswell born July 17, 1881
Martha Lorie Boswell born August 21, 1885.

The years were hard immediately after the Civil War and more and more of Bill's friends were migrating to Texas, railroads having been built toward the west by now. He and Rody decided to take all of the children, except eighteen-year old Carrie who had married Bill Rody November 5, 1885, and twenty-five year old Susie who lived with the McCollroughs, and move to Texas. Here it seemed the opportunity was greater to support his large family.

In December 1886, therefore, William and Rebecca with their eight children, one nephew - Dick Boswell -, one grandnephew - Dick's son - (Jim, three years old) left Harris County, Georgia, for Hereford, Texas. The trip was made by train which was fired and hooked with coal. Everything was black with coal smoke. The trip took about three days and nights on the road. With a crowd of kids also, many things were bound to happen. Because of food had to be carried for this large family. As Lottie Mckoy, Arkansas, that trains had to lay over for a few hours. As they were getting off the train onto the platform at the depot, John Will Boswell who was nine missed the platform and down he went. George who was eleven followed him, and when Bill Boswell got them out from under the dirty platform, they were black from head to toe. Hire. Boswell was inclined to be a pretty proud woman and wanted her children to always look nice and clean. She got them inside the depot and cleaned them thoroughly, but by this time everybody was hungry and all the food which had been brought in the bucket was eaten. Mr. Boswell sent the oldest boy, Ben, who was twenty to see if he could find anything to buy to eat. He came back with a baked duck! After they had eaten, Boswell put them all to bed on the depot floor on pallets. When the train caller announced the train would leave, Mrs. Boswell and her eight children, with the others, were ready with each face washed and her own hair combed and neat. Apparently, the only running water was in the horse troughs in front of the station so to accomplish this gracefully was not as easy as it might seem. It is said that Fletcher with her fourteen-year old plumplish figure covered in coal smoke could have won no beauty contest. The boys all wore short white pants. Among other things to make the trip memorable was five-year old Hattie's inability to train-ride without being sick all the way from Georgia to Texas.

On a Christmas Eve like no other, December 24, 1886, the family arrived at Mansfield, Texas. There to meet the train were the long-time friends of William's. The Smiths, the Helms, the Hamils, the Pritchards and the Williams had all come to Texas ahead of the Boswells. Believe it or not, every child had his or her stockings filled with goodies from Santa Claus that night, due to the kindness of these friends. After a few days of resting, Bill Boswell started the search for a home for his family. With the aid of his friend, George Hamil, who had fought side-by-side with him under General Lee, Bill rented the John Boydston farm at Mansfield adjoining the Hamil farm. Mr. Boydston was a bachelor and wished to retain part of the house and since Mr. and Mrs. Boswell and their eight children made ten, that was eleven people in this small three-room house. All the belongings Bill and Becky Boswell could bring had been packed in trunks and shipped, so there was very little furniture. Not enough bedsteads were available, so Mrs. Boswell unpacked the bedding, etc., and used the trunks to sleep on. There were still not enough mattresses, so Mr. Boydston, who had gunny sacks full of wheat in one of the three rooms, put the trunks in this room and used the sacked wheat for mattresses and all the men and boys slept in that room. In the other room, Mr. and Mrs. Boswell, Katie, Hattie, Maude and Fletcher slept. Mr. Boydston was very generous with his possessions and he had a lot full of Texas Longhorn cows, a yard full of chickens and said, "Help yourself, they are all yours." Mrs. Boswell found the water too hard to use for washing clothes and soft water had to be hauled from a spring on Mountain Creek, about six or seven miles away. She often wondered how any man could love a woman and bring her to Texas to live. Also, Maude and Fletcher, who were sixteen and fourteen years of age, were learning what it was to milk a Texas Longhorn that had never seen a woman before. Mr. Boydston tied the cows to the fence so that the girls could milk them.

One year later, Mr. Boswell moved his family to the L. H. Stevens place which had six large rooms. Dan, who was twenty-one by now, went back to Georgia and married Nonnie Rich on October 16, 1887, bringing her back to the Boydstun Place where he and Nonnie lived for two years.

Shortly after Bill and Becky moved to the Stevens Place there were days and days of rain. Fletcher and Maude had to milk about ten or twelve cows and had to wear the boys rubber boots to get into the lot, which was black mud. The girls would say some ugly words when they would get a bad cow that would not be still long enough to be milked! They would lose their boots trying to halt the cow. Fletcher fell in the mud and Mr. Boswell would then hear his daughters saying things that would not do to print. Maude threatened to go to Fort Worth and swear that Texas had the meanest cows on earth.

The Boswell family lived at this place for three years and Maude was married at the age of eighteen to John Marion Blanks on October 25, 1888. He was an "older" man of twenty-six whom she met in Mansfield. They were married early in the morning and caught the one and only train to Fort Worth to make their home. Mr. Blanks was born near Montgomery, Alabama, March 12, 1862.

Susie, who had remained in Georgia, was married December 16, 1891, to C. H. King. Fletcher was married August 20, 1893, to George Hamil, Jr., son of Bill's old friend and neighbor. George S. Boswell and Ella Wilson were married November 27, 1898. Hattie R. Boswell and Samuel Edwards Balch were married December 2, 1900. Morgan W. Boswell and Della McDonald were married November 10, 1901. Mattie Kate Boswell and Hezekiah B. Balch were married April 20, 1902.

The first death of the children of Bill Boswell who reached maturity was that of Carrie Boswell Reedy, who died in Mansfield, Texas, March 10, 1895, at the age of twenty-seven, leaving her husband, Bill, and five little girls: Willie, Susie, Berta, Rosa and Carrie.

John Will Boswell, at the age of forty-two, died of a heart attack in Mansfield, Texas, leaving his wife, Thona, with two young boys, Clyde and Ray. Dan Boswell and Susie Boswell King died in Georgia. George S. Boswell died in Fort Worth, Texas, July 20, 1953.

On the birthdate of a famous American, February 22, William Boswell, a beloved husband and father, died in Mansfield, Texas, in the year 1906 at the age of seventy-two. He was a great man, a great American.

Wm. Boswell

GUSTAVUS BOSWELL and DESCENDANTS

By

LORIN A. BOSWELL

Chapter I

Gustavus Boswell

Gustavus[1] Boswell, the great-great-great grandfather of the author of this book, was in the armed forces in Maryland in 1777 during the Revolutionary War. He was previously included in the 1776 census list of Peter Griffith, constable and census taker of Port Tobacco—East Hundred, Charles County, Maryland.[2]

Private Gustavus Boswell was in the Muster Roll of Captain John Hanson's Company, 12th Regiment, Maryland Militia in 1777 in Charles County, Maryland.[3] He took the Oath of Fidelity in 1778.[3]

The March Court in 1778 of males from eighteen years old and up, Port Tobacco—East Hundred, Charles County, Maryland included Gustavus Boswell among the other Boswells listed as follows: Edward Boswell, Gustavus Boswell, Matthew Boswell, Joseph Boswell, Josias Boswell, Elijah Boswell, George Boswell and Walter Boswell.[2] Also for the interest of whom it may concern, Captain John Hanson's Company of Maryland Militia, in addition to Gustavus Boswell, included the following Boswells: Jesse Boswell, Josias Boswell, Joseph Boswell, Richard Boswell, Ignatius Boswell and Edward Boswell.[3] It is not known whether or not any of the other Boswells listed above were related to Gustavus Boswell.

The Revolutionary War ended in 1781. The tax lists of District 5, Charles County, Maryland show that Gustavus Boswell was a single man in the years of 1782 and 1783.[3] It is elsewhere indicated that it was in 1784 that he married Zeruia Ward, a daughter of David Lindsey Ward. Next, it is shown that for the years of 1787 to 1790 Gustavus Boswell paid subscriptions to the vestry of Durham Protestant Episcopal Church in Charles County, Maryland, according to Church Records of the Maryland Historical Society.[3]

[1]Sometimes spelled Gustavius by others.

[3]Maryland Genealogical Bulletin, Maryland Historical Society, Baltimore, Maryland.

Records indicate that soon after marriage, Gustavus Boswell and his wife began a series of moves, that they resided in North Carolina in 1785, Maryland and Virginia in the late 1780's, North Carolina in 1795, South Carolina in 1800, that they were back in North Carolina before 1810, and that they stayed there until 1827.

On December 7, 1789, Gustavus[4] Boswell and his wife Zeruia (Ward) Boswell, of Prince William County of the Commonwealth of Virginia, sold "Inglethorp," which tract of land consisted of 100 acres on Ward's Run and was in Charles County, Maryland, to Henry Barnes for 200 pounds.[5]

The title of Gustavus Boswell and Zeruia (Ward) Boswell to this land, according to the deed of December 7, 1789, showed among other things that on August 8, 1769 David Lindsey Ward had granted this tract of land known as "Inglethorp" in Charles County, Maryland, to his daughter Levina (Ward) Scott and her husband James Scott for their natural lives, and upon their demise to David Scott, son of James Scott; but further provided that should David Scott die without lawfully begotten heirs, the land would go to Zeruia Ward.[5] Thus this land had come to Zeruia (Ward) Boswell from her father, David Lindsey Ward.

The will of David Lindsey Ward was signed on July 7, 1808; and a codicil of August 8, 1808 requested that the Negro girl Winny be sold and that the proceeds be handled in a certain way.[6] David Lindsey Ward died in Rowan County, North Carolina in 1809, and some bequests were made in the following language: ". . . to my daughter Zeruia 247 acres of land; to my daughter Sussana a certain tract of land (as described); to my son Isaac 200 acres of land where now I live; to my daughter Rachel 237 acres of land; 200 acres of land to the children born of the body of my daughter Elizabeth; to my daughter Levina certain (described) personal property and land in payment for a note; and to my wife Lidia I lend two Negro women, namely Nell and Dinah, and also the houses, plantation and land whereon I now live, with all of the household and kitchen furniture, stock of horses . . . during her natural life. And that after her death all property so lent her or otherwise unbequeathed, be sold and that the money be divided equally among my children, namely, Levina, Zeruia, Sussana, Isaac, Rachel and Elizabeth . . ." Division of all the Negroes was provided for, etc.

[4]His signature was spelled Gustavus.
[5]Land Records, Charles County, Maryland.
[6]Will Records, Rowan County, North Carolina.

These many bequests along with others indicate that David Lindsey Ward was a successful plantation owner in his time.

And from the state's land records, it was interesting to observe that many Maryland landowners during the 1600's and 1700's bore the name of Ward. Some of these may well be my ancestors. As already stated, in 1789 Zeruia (Ward) Boswell and her husband Gustavus Boswell sold a tract of land called "Inglethorp" located in Charles County, Maryland. In 1666 a tract of land called "Ingothorp" located in Charles County, Maryland was granted to a John Ward.[5]

Whatever one's inference may be from this marked similarity of names given to land, my earliest known forebears were Lidia and David Lindsey Ward, my great-great-great-great grandparents.

Following the sale of his Maryland land in 1789, Gustavus Boswell next appeared in the U.S. census of Spartanburg, South Carolina in 1800; and in the 1810 census he and his wife and children were enumerated in Rowan County, North Carolina.

By this time the last one of their nine children, David Lindsey Boswell, had been born. The name and approximate year of birth of all the children follow: Edward Boswell, 1785;

Greshas Boswell, 1787; William Boswell, 1791; John Boswell, 1793; Gustavus Boswell, Jr., 1795; Lydia Boswell, 1797; Violetta Boswell, 1799; Clarissa Boswell, 1802, and David Lindsey Boswell, 1808.

Gustavus Boswell was living in Rowan County, North Carolina when the first known death in his family occurred, that of his son, William Boswell, in 1819. On December 1, 1819 the account of the sales of the estate of William Boswell showed that sales were made to twenty-eight persons which included the following Boswell family members: Gustavus Boswell; Gustavus Boswell, Jr., John Boswell, David Boswell; Mary Boswell, widow of William Boswell; and Isaac Ward, son of David Lindsey Ward.[7]

Gustavus Boswell was mentioned several times in connection with guardianship matters pertaining to some of his grandchildren, orphaned children both of William Boswell and Edward Boswell.[7] On May 19, 1823 he was appointed guardian of Kerr Boswell, with the bond signed by Gustavus Boswell, Jr. In some instances when Gustavus Boswell, Jr. was the guardian, his father signed the bond for his son.[7]

There were two instances of minor litigation involving Gustavus Boswell, and his daughter Violetta Boswell. On May 18, 1824 in the case of Gustavus Boswell vs. Robert Fleming, the jury found all issues for the defendant; whereas on May 19, 1824, the following day, in the case of Violetta Boswell vs. Robert Fleming, the jury found all issues for the plaintiff and awarded her $28.15. Public records threw no light on the nature of the litigation.

Other public records of a different kind show that on August 15, 1825 the Court of Rowan County authorized and ordered that Gustavus Boswell act as Overseer of the Road from Hunting Creek in Rowan County to Summer's Old House. On the same date Gustavus Boswell and others were authorized by the Court to work the road from Renshaw's [7]Rowan County Estates (original) records in State Archives, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Ford (in Rowan County) to the Iredell County line. Gustavus Boswell's daughter-in-law, Rachel (McKee) Boswell, the widow of Edward Boswell, died in Iredell County, North Carolina in 1839.

Signs began to appear that Gustavus Boswell was planning to leave North Carolina. On March 6, 1827 he and his wife Zeruia (the deed recited that she was known as "Rue") sold their land[5] in Rowan County, North Carolina, land that had been received from her father, at his death in 1809.[6] Again, on August 24, 1827 Gustavus Boswell, Sr., came into court and resigned as guardian for Levi Boswell, an orphaned son of William Boswell.[7]

The time had come to move and Gustavus Boswell was to be the first of our several Boswells who would relocate in Alabama and Mississippi. The attraction there was land, free land or cheap land, some of which had been recently occupied by Indian tribes. At this point, a one-paragraph review of some American history may serve the memory of some readers.[9]

For many years settlers had been coming into the South in increasing numbers, in spite of Indian dangers along with foreign intrigue and war. However, French, English and Spanish influence in southern and southeastern parts of the United States was ended by 1819. The Mississippi Territory had become the state of Mississippi in 1817 and the Alabama Territory had become the state of Alabama in 1819. The creation of these two states had been at the expense mainly of four tribes of American Indians, the Cherokees, the Chickasaws, the Choctaws and the Creeks. Through the years the many treaties made with the Indians had been broken both by the invaders of the ancestral territories of the Indians as well as by the Indians themselves who committed many horrible massacres. Final treaties with the aforesaid Indian groups, negotiated by Commissioners appointed by President Andrew Jackson, provided for their removal to the West. In due course

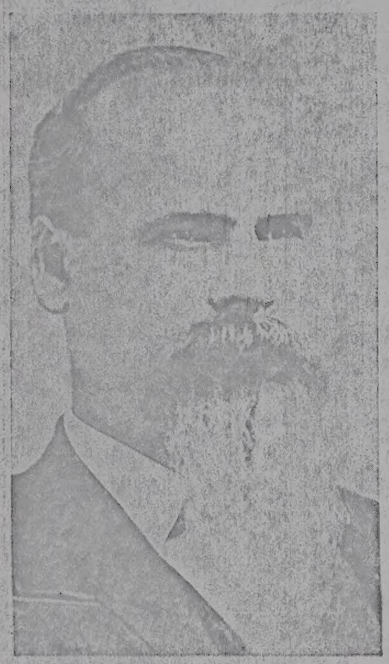
JAMES M. LOWE



For over fifty years James M. Lowe was an illustrious leader in social, financial, political, educational, and religious affairs of this county. He was a man of striking appearance, dignified in manner, but always kind, courteous, and considerate in his relations to others. He was prompt, fearless, and efficient in the discharge of his duty, and was held in the highest esteem by his fellow citizens.

James M. Lowe was born in Crawford County, Ga., February 19, 1839, the son of Wm. H. Lowe, who was born in N. C. May 30, 1803, and Caroline Boswell Lowe, who was born in Green County, Ga., November 8, 1809.

He was married to Evelyn Rushin October 27, 1859. They had seven children, two dying in infancy: Mrs. R. H. Stokes (deceased), Mrs. R. H. Peacock of Columbus, Mrs. J. H. Hull of Atlanta, Mrs. V. L. McMichael of Columbus, Mrs. M. L. Lowe (deceased.

After attending Collinworth Institute, he studied law in the office of M. H. Blandford in Buena Vista where he was admitted to the bar in 1859.

On April 15, 1861, he enlisted in the Confederate army as a member of Co. I, 2nd Ga. Regiment Infantry and served valiantly until he was severely wounded at the second battle of Manassas, being incapacitated for further duty. Capt. Wm. Redd of Columbus, Ga. carried him from the battlefield and gave him first aid. Later he was taken to Richmond to the home of Mrs. Annie B. Royston who was a veritable Florence Nightengale, ministering to the sick and wounded soldiers.

In 1864, he was elected ordinary of Marion and held this office twenty-five years. After the war, he and John R. Rushin conducted a prosperous mercantile business in Buena Vista for sixteen years. After Mr. Rushin's death, he continued to operate an excellent store for several years. In 1883-84-85 he was a prime factor in building the Buena Vista and Ellaville railroad, serving as president until the road was sold to the Central of Ga. He participated prominently in the organization of the Buena Vista Loan & Savings Bank, being president for many years.

He was chairman of the city board of education for a long time. In early manhood, he united with the Methodist Church and was an enthusiastic worker in all its activities until his death which occurred November 3, 1913.

CHARLES WARREN LOWE AND CLAUD W. LOWE

Charles Warren Lowe was born in Stewart County, Ga., October 20, 1867, the son of Erastus William Lowe (1837-1878) and Cornelia (Wright) Lowe (1847-1931), both of whom were members of families who participated prominently in the development of this section. He was one of six children, his brothers and sister being: James Erastus, George R., Marcus L., William H., and Sarah Corilla (deceased).

Mr. Lowe began his career in Buena Vista as a merchant and was remarkably successful in this line. For many years he was engaged in banking, having served as president, vice-president and chairman of the board of directors of the Buena Vista Loan and Savings Bank. He was also interested in agriculture, being an extensive land owner in Marion.

He became clerk of the superior court of this county January 1, 1903 and held this office until his death, February 14, 1926. In his service to Marion, he was earnest, cheerful, faithful and efficient. He always co-operated in a loyal and wholehearted way with every movement leading to the advancement of his town and community. He was kind, modest, generous, considerate and ready to respond to every worthy cause. He had a host of friends in the county and state who loved him.

He was married November 28, 1894, to Lily Blue, daughter of I. P. Blue and Melissa (Snelgrove) Blue, being one of the oldest and most prominent families in Marion. They had six children: Etta (Mrs. T. N. Williams), Charles Erastus, Lynda, Claud William, Harriet, and Lilly. Their grandchildren are: Rosa Blue, Turner Nelson, Charlie Lowe and Lyndia Lowe, the children of Mrs. Etta Lowe Williams; Jean and Charles Davis, the children of Charles Erastus Lowe.

Claud W. Lowe, the son of Charles W. Lowe, was born in Buena Vista, July 3, 1904. He graduated from the Buena Vista High School in May, 1921 and was the valedictorian of his class. After attending the University of Georgia four years, he received his A. B. degree magna cum laude in June, 1925. He took a leading part in the activities of the University, being a member of Phi Delta Theta and Phi Beta Kappa Fraternities. On March 20, 1926, he was elected without opposition to succeed his father as clerk of the superior court of Marion. He filled this office efficiently until September, 1930, when he resigned and became superintendent of the public schools in Hamilton, Ga. He taught in the summer school at Mercer University in 1931. He is a promising young man of brilliant intellect and engaging personality and has many friends and admirers throughout the state.

Franklin Co. Deed Books

PREFACE

The original purpose of this book was to present an index to Franklin Co. Deeds from 1826 through 1860, as a follow-up to my book of abstracts, DEEDS OF FRANKLIN CO. GA. 1784-1826. However, after much consideration, and on the advice of others, I decided a complete index of deeds from 1784- 1860 would be of greater value to researchers in the long run.

There are three indexes to Franklin Co. Deeds on microfilm at the Georgia Archives. The most complete index is designated "Book Y", and apparently was in existence by 1872. This index covers Deed Books C through CD. It is a grantor-grantee index only, arranged alphabetically by first letter of the sir-name only, chronologically by deed book. The second index has the same format as the first, but covers only Books O through B. The third index is a W.P.A. typescript index to "Personal and Proper Names" found in "Book Y".

In using these indexes as a cross-reference when abstracting the early deed books, I found none of the three to be completely accurate. Many documents were not indexed, names were misread, and references to book and page numbers were inaccurately transcribed. It is probable that at the time the indexes were prepared, the earlier deed books were already badly worn, faded, and in some cases falling apart. This would have made indexing a difficult task. Fortunately, the incidence of error in indexing the later books(BB-CD) seems to be less frequent.

Because of the discrepancies found in references to the earlier deed books, I have used by own compilation of abstracts to index records from Deed Books C through B. I used the entries as they appear in"Book Y" for the remainder of the index covering Books BB through CD.

I would like to express my warm thanks to all who have received my first book with such enthusiasm and kind words, and a very special thanks to The Rev. S.E. Lucas who made both books possible.

INTRODUCTION

In a conversation with my father several years ago concerning ou nection with some members of our family, we remarked, "Someone write a record of the family while some of the older ones are still l

My father replied, "Why don't you do it?"

This work is the result of that conversation. We make no claim to a genealogist, historian, or writer. In the spare time of the busy lif college professor, we have attempted to compile as accurately as p what information we were able to gather of the family of John and Douglas, who were the first of our line in Mississippi. This is not a gen in that we have made no effort to trace the lineage of the family John Douglas nor tie it into other branches of the Douglas family. ( quite by accident that we discovered the connection with the William las Family in North Carolina). This is not a history of the family, do not have available enough information to write a complete history is simply a listing of the descendants by families of John and Nancy you may know something of the background of the family, we have in four brief chapters, what historical material we have been able to Chapter One is condensed from volumes that have been written about land and the Douglas families' relationship to it. The other three ch are the result of our research.

As stated above, we have made no effort to trace the lineage b
John Douglas; however, we know we belong to the vast Douglas family for centuries in southern Scotland. Since no one kept a record of the lies in the early days, there are many lines in the United States, th nection of which we do not know. We have discovered seven separate in Mississippi. Most of them arrived here about the same time, b far as we know, have no close connection with each other.

We find that there are several traditions held by various memb our family as to our forefathers John Douglas. We have traced ea these traditions and, on the basis of facts as to dates and recorded re have arrived at what we believe is authentic. One tradition holds that Douglas came to Mississippi from Tennessee. (We held to this tra until research proved it untrue). There was a John Douglas who went Surry County, North Carolina to Tennessee on a military land grant in as described in Chapter Two. However, this John Douglas died in Tenn
The fact that John Douglas lived for three years on Lookout Mount
Tennessee, as described in Chapter Three, perhaps added to this trad
There is another tradition that John Douglas was a Georgian by birth.
was a John Douglas in Georgia about this time. We find many recor

THE FOURTH LAND LOTTERY - ALSO KNOWN AS THE 1821 LOTTERY

The fourth, or 1821 Land Lottery opened the portion of Georgia between the Ocmulgee and Flint Rivers for settlement. This area, comprised of original Fayette, Henry, Monroe, Houston and Dolly Counties, extended from today's Roswell on the north to Ashburn on the South. The tract was ceded to the United States by the Creek Nation of Indians on January 8,1821 at the Treaty of Indian Springs. Approximately four months later, by Act of May 15,1821, the drawing of the lottery was held at Milledgeville, the State Capitol.

As this was the fourth lottery to be held by Georgia, all persons who had drawn blanks in the three previous lotteries were able to participate. Many, for the first time, received a prize, and ultimately were granted a land lot by the State of Georgia. The lots were 202 1/2 acres in size and the fortunate drawer could receive his grant by paying the $19.00 grant fee established by law.

PREFACE

The British and Continental background of Maryland colonists has maintained my interest for nearly sixty years. During the many hours spent among Maryland records as well as source records in Britain and on the Continent whenever a reference was cited as to European origin of a Maryland colonist, notation was carefully made.

The results will offset the all-too-often statement that Maryland settlers were of a low social and economic status and that Maryland like the other Colonies was a haven for criminals turned out of English jails. It gives subjective satisfaction to debunk our heritage, especially those only a few generations on our shores or those from the peasantry and ghettos of Europe.

Statements furthermore are made that the early Maryland settlers were not aware of their ancestry or had come to America to forget it. While it is conclusively accepted that all colonials were not of ennobled blood or scions of the squirarchy and county gentry, many were of high social standing in Britain and the Continent and continued to emulate that culture in Maryland.

Many brought their credentials with them or letters of introduction from folks at home to friends or kinsmen who had emigrated to Maryland. Such documents have mostly been lost through the vicissitudes of time, but a few survive to this day.

Recall Lord Baltimore stated that nearly "Twenty Gentlemen of Fashion" had sailed on the Ark and the Dove in 1633. Many so-called convicts sold in Maryland after the internal wars in Britain between 1715-1775 were principally political and religious prisoners who had been condemned to banishment whose blood was in many cases as proud as any in Britain.

Some convicts, it cannot be denied, were from prisons with criminal records, but it should not be overlooked that, according to Blackstone, 160 offences in Britain were punishable by death. We are therefore prepared with reason to accept that many of the offenders shipped to Maryland were in most cases victims of stringent laws compatible with the times or subject to torts and misdemeanors rather than serious crimes.

They are all gone, their little day is o'er
They weep. they langh, they sport no more;
Their feet are still and others in their room
With busy step are hurrying to the tomb.
We in our turn to others will give space,
And others yet come forth to run the race;
And yet that race by others shall be run
Till time is o'er and the world is done.

A WELL KNOWN CITIZEN KILLED

From the Baltimore Sun, Aug. 28, 1857, Page 1, Col. 1.

On Wednesday afternoon last (Aug. 26) an accident at Peekskill, on the line of the Hudson River Railroad in the State of New York, by which Thomas Sewell Sr., one of our most aged and respected citizens, was instantly killed. Mr. Sewall was travelling for his health. ... and in company with his daughter and sister-in-law.

When the train arrived at Peekskill Mr. Sewell was seen to leave the car and walked to the rear of the depot. He returned as the train was moving out and in attempting to mount the platform of the car in which the ladies were seated, made a misstep and fell upon the track. Before the train could be stopped the wheels of the train passed over his body. Dr. Snowden of Peekskill was instantly called to his aid, but life was already extinct.

Mr. Sewell was formerly of the firm of Thomas Sewell & Sons, Tanners, 477 Pennsylvania Avenue. The establishment is still conducted by his sons. He leaves a large acquaintanee, ... who will be shocked to peruse this announcement of his sudden demise. His death occoured in the 69th year of his age.

Dear Col.

The enclosed are Exact Lists of the draughts and Substitutes draughted &c. for this County the present year. I Judge you Will be amazed to See Such a number Discharged, therefore have Noted against their Respective Names, the Causes that Rendered it Necessary. There are Also Several that are So debilitated by Sickness that they are Not able to March at present, and a few Sculkers that I have Not been able as yet to git hold off, tho have made use of the most probable means for that purpose, and hope in a few days to accomplish it. Please Lay the Lists Before the Honorable the Governor and Council and Oblige

Dr. Sir

Your Respectfull Huml. Servt.,

Frans. Ware.

To Col. John H. Stone, Annapolis.

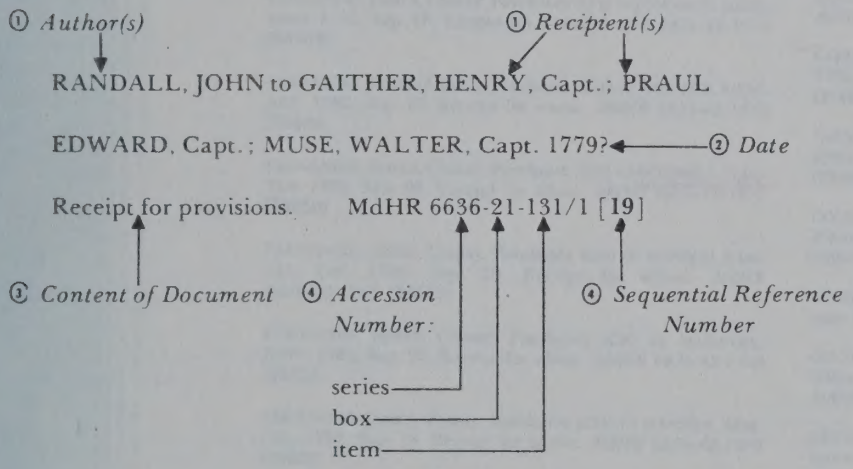
HOW TO USE THE INVENTORY

In compiling this guide to the over 31,000 loose records in the Maryland State Papers series our goal was to formulate brief entries for each item that still included salient information to make individual records easily identifiable and readily retrievable. The format adopted consists of four elements: 1) author and recipient, 2) date, 3) content of the document, 4) accession number and a sequential reference number. The various elements are illustrated in the following example:

EXAMPLE



AUTHOR/RECIPIENT

Where the author(s) and recipient(s) of a document are known, the name(s) appears in full caps, with the author's name preceding that of the recipient. When the author is unknown, but the name of the recipient(s) is, the author is represented by an asterisk (e.g., * to MCPHERSON, SAMUEL). Where neither author nor recipient is known, the item begins with the date (e.g., 1779? Cash paid to Capt. Muse. MdHR 6636-21-131/1 [201]).

ABSTRACTS OF LAND PATENTS

by

Margaret M. Hofmann

FOREWORD

It was in 1663 and 1665 that Charles II granted to eight men, who had helped him regain the English throne, an enormous expanse of land in colonial America in which is found present-day North Carolina. Under the two charters, the eight Lords Proprietors received, with other rights and privileges, the authority to grant land. The device by which the Lords granted land to the colonists was the land patent.

Land patents were of two kinds: purchase patents in which case the patentee paid a fee for the land, and patents received under the system of headrights. With the latter, a settler could obtain a given quantity of land simply by being in the colony and/or paying for the importation of other settlers into the colony.

The mechanics for acquiring land from the Proprietors was relatively simple. Once an area was open to settlement, one had only to make application to the representatives of the Lords Proprietors for the land he wanted. The Council then issued a land warrant (an order) to the provincial surveyor to set apart certain land which was loosely described on the face of the warrant. The surveyor located the tract using metes and bounds, an ancient system, whereby land was related to natural barriers — the rivers, the sandy banks, the sounds, the streams. Identifiable flora, indigenous to the Carolina area, such as pines, the various oaks, maples, and dogwood were used as property corners and witness trees.

Next the surveyor set down a detailed land description, reciting the courses (direction in degrees) and distances (measured in poles) necessary to find the land exactly. And finally, the surveyor was required to make a plat (a map) of the acreage surveyed. The Council then issued the land patent (a document) to the patentee. The land warrant and survey were filed with the Secretary of the colony and eventually the land patents were recorded in bound volumes.

Thus North Carolina has among the Secretary of State's land records some thirty four hundred land patents of the Proprietary period and it is from this group of land patents on record in the Secretary of State's Land Grant Office, Administration Building, Raleigh, North Carolina that the abstracts in this book were made. Proprietary land patents were found in books 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, 9, and 13.

Although no original papers relating to Proprietary surveys or land warrants have survived among the Secretary of State's land grant office records, and the books undoubtedly have been copied on occasion, the Proprietary land patents are both rich in information and absolutely essential to the study of genealogy and local history.

According to George Stevenson, Search Room Supervisor, North Carolina State Archives, Raleigh, "the records of patents issued by the North Carolina governor and council out of the secretary's office are remarkably complete. It is true that there are years for which there are no records of patents, but if one prepared a table of the years during which the land office was closed by order of the Lords Proprietors, one would no doubt find in the table the explanation for the apparent gaps in the records of patents."

It will be helpful to the researcher to use this compilation of land records in conjunction with several other books. First, the North Carolina Gazetteer by William S. Powell is an invaluable guide-book to the location of many streams, islands, creeks, paths, necks, and the like whose names appear in the land records. Second, the researcher should inspect the two volume series Cavaliers and Pioneers, Abstracts of Virginia Land Patents and Grants by Nugent since certain of the early North Carolina area patents were granted by the Virginia government and some are found in the Virginia records.

The abstracts in this book are set up according to the following format: an abstract number by which the work is dually indexed appears first, followed by the patent book page number, the name of the patentee, the patent date, and the number of acres. Next is given the location of the land in a precinct or county upon a creek, or river, or branch, or the like as well as the names of adjoining land holders. Last is the list of names of the representatives of the Lords Proprietors who granted the land. Sometimes there follows a note concerning a lapsed or elapsed patent. Such information is essentially self-explanatory if one keeps in mind that land patents could be lost for various reasons, such as, failure to pay the purchase price.

The Proprietary period of North Carolina began in 1663 and ended in 1729. However, as happens so often with old records, a hard, fast cut-off date is not readily apparent. It will be noted that the land patents of the proprietary period continue as late as December 1730.

Variant spelling of surnames and place names has been a continuing problem in the preparation of this work. Therefore, spelling is set down exactly as it appears in the patent books. No great effort has been made to combine all apparent variant spellings as this would be, at best, only a guess in many instances on the part of the compiler and could result in misleading the researcher who uses this book in the pursuit of genealogy and local history.

Thanks are due several persons whose assistance is gratefully acknowledged: to Mr. Stevenson, mentioned above, for his encouragement and help during the several years this book was in progress; to Dr. Jacquelyn Wolf, assistant professor of sociology, Lake Erie College, Painesville, Ohio, who, in the preparation of her doctoral dissertation The Proud and the Poor: The Social Organization of Leadership in Proprietary North Carolina, 1663-1729, located the vast majority of the proprietary patents thereby greatly simplifying this compiler's work; and to Mrs. Martha Paskewich, land grant clerk, for her cheerfulness and patience in answering myriad questions asked by the compiler.

the leader of the pack. He rarely drove over 25 miles per hour anywhere he went. He was the inventor of the traffic jam in Piedmont, North Carolina.

From my youngest years I will always remember Pop sitting there in his chair, reading his large family bible. He read his paper every night and after his paper he always read his bible. He must have read it through many times.

As I have already mentioned, Effie Boswell Florance was the daughter of William "Billy" W. Boswell. She was born in Alamance County, North Carolina on July 4, 1896. Her mother was Betty Turner Boswell. Betty was the daughter of William E. Turner and Ellen Jane Capes of Caswell County, North Carolina.

The Boswells lived near the Florances in Caswell County. Granny's dad was born in Caswell County. His dad ran the old mill on South County Line Creek. Most of that land had been passed down through the Gooch family and the Boswells had bought some of it. The mill was bought by Granny's grandfather — William Boswell in the 1830s but they ran the mill before that. Captain Joseph Benton had started the mill place and the Boswells ran it. There was also a spring in the bank of the creek below the mill where the Boswells had a distillery. The excess grain would be changed to whiskey and sold on the market for their main income. The first Boswell in that area to settle on County Line Creek was Howell Boswell. He was Granny's great-grandfather. Howell married Susannah Gooch.

Our set of Boswells come from the line of Boswells who settled in Ware Township of Gloucester County in Virginia. They came from Scotland circa 1650. All blood lines tying to my direct lineage are from this old timer named Thomas Boswell. The migration of the Boswells was much like that of the Florences: they settled on the coast and later migrated to Spottsylvania County, Virginia. Then they went on to Mecklinburg County, Virginia, and into Granville County, North Carolina. By 1803 Ransom Boswell, father of Howell Boswell, moved west from Granville to Caswell County and got his land near Locust Hill. He is buried on that land between Yancyville and Reidsville on Highway 158 just past the intersection of Route 150.

Effie Boswell started working in a cotton mill at a very young age. She never got far in school because she had to go to work. She was working in the mill one day when she decided that a little girl should be allowed to play some. She went outside and was playing. Her boss came out and fired her. He said he wasn't going to pay her to play. As she was going down the road a man came out of another section of the mill. His name was Mr. Heritage. He asked Effie where she was going. She said her boss had fired her. Mr. Heritage told her to come back and work in his section and he would teach her to spin. So she went back to work for Mr. Heritage.

Effie always gave her Dad her money she made. She never opened a pay envelope until after she and Pop were married. Effie never knew anything but hard work, but I never heard her complain. She always showed her love to everyone of her children and grandchildren in a very special way. I recall that she cared for Pop Florance's dad until his death. When he became sick he came to live with Granny and Pop. Granny also worked in the mill and raised her boys and girl. She cared for her parents also in their old age. She nursed them both along until their deaths.

Granny would always wash on Monday morning. It was a traditional thing to her. She washed, rain or shine. I have been there many times and the whole table would be full of fried apple half moon pies. I would eat about a dozen of them. I would be so full I couldn't hold anything else, so I'd wrap up some and take them with me.

I guess to sum up the whole story about Pop and Granny Florance would be to say that I am very fortunate to have such wonderful grandparents and I thank God for them.

My dad is James "Buster" Lee Florence, Sr., the second son of Johnny and Effie Florance. He was born in Alamance County, North Carolina, up near the old airport. They lived near Aunt Mattie Florence Young and Dad would always go to see Aunt Mattie. Aunt Mattie's daughter Christine helped Edgefield was formed in 1785 in Ninety Six District and was one of the largest counties formed in South Carolina. By the County Court Act of 1785, the county court of Edgefield was to sit beginning on the second Monday of January, April, July and October. With the alteration of the county court system in 1791, this intermediate court was to sit on the first Monday of June and November and the county court to sit the 11th of March and 1st of September.

INTRODUCTION

Unfortunately some years of the County Court Minutes for Edgefield are missing: 1791-93 and 1796-99. However, the most valuable records (from 1785 to 1790) are extant. In any county, records prior to the 1790 census are valuable, but particularly in the case of Edgefield. This is due to the fact that Edgefield has lost one or two early deed books. Over 175 deeds proved or acknowledged in open court in 1786 and 1787 cannot be found. (Furthermore, upon examination of the deed books and upon comparison with the court minutes, Deed Book 2 dates from an earlier time than Deed Book 1.).

By the County Court Act of 1785, the county courts were to record deeds, try small cases, take bastardy bonds, grant tavern licenses, etc. By an act of 28 March 1787, these courts were also made courts of ordinary: proving wills, granting letters of administration, appointing guardians, etc. Probates before this date can be found in records of Ninety Six District back to 1781. Proving deeds became quite a problem--finding two witnesses to come to court or sending a dedimus to any county to take testimony of a witness--and took a great amount of court time. By an act of 29 January 1788, a deed could be proved by any one witness before a magistrate (not in open court) or acknowledged in open court by grantor. The matter of dedimi sent to other counties is one of the best ways to determine emigration. Notice the number of these from Edgefield sent to Georgia. In 1800 the county court system in South Carolina was abolished, and all counties became known as districts.

The court minutes abstracted here are found in two original volumes, now lamenated and housed in the Edgefield Office of Probate Judge. Original pagination is given in the left margin.

Fielding Lewis' First Bid for Public Office
The Election of 1758

Boswell

When the governor called for elections for a new Assembly in July, 1758, Fielding Lewis ran for a seat in the House of Burgesses — and lost. Because of the voting strength in the central and south of the county, "Rappahannock" candidates seldom won in general elections, but they fared better in by-elections when there was a lighter turnout. Lewis came in a credible third, behind Zachary Lewis and William Waller; two years later, he won the by-election to replace Waller, who had died, and he was returned to office in new elections in 1765.

In the 1758 election, there were about 200 voters, each eligible to cast two votes. An alphabetized list appears below, with asterisks by the names of the voters who cast a ballot for Lewis. For a description of the colonial election process and a record of Spotsylvania elections, see Appendix B.

Both saw Roger Williams in Rhode Island, and Katherine was undoubtedly an important influence in bringing about the "Providence Compact," which was drawn up in the handwriting of her husband, Richard Scott. Inspired by the heritage and teachings of their father, a London minister of the established Church, the Marbury sisters were among those leaders who fought for the right of religious freedom, an ideal which became, over a century later, one of the fundamental guarantees of the American Constitution: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The Scotts. Richard Scott was the son of Richard Scott, and Margaret (Haney) Scott, and was born at Glensford, Suffolk, England, in 1607. Edward Scott, the grandfather of Richard, Jr., was of the Scotts of Scott's Hall in Kent, who traced their lineage through John Baliol to the early Kings of Scotland, beginning with Richard De Clare, Earl of Harford, present at the coronation of King Richard I in 1189; d. shortly before 28 November 1217; m. BIOGRAPHY NO. 1

Lawrence Wilkinson, the first of our race in America, was born in Lanchester, County Durham, England. He was the son of William Wilkinson by his wife, Mary, sister of Sir John Conyers, Bart., and the grandson of Lawrence Wilkinson, of Harpley House, Durham.

Our knowledge concerning him on the other side of the Atlantic is limited to a few, but quite important, particulars. His birth, his parentage, and his own conduct, entitle him to very favorable consideration, and reflect honor upon his character as a conscientious adherent of the constituted authorities. The house to which he belonged had always been noted for its consistent adherence to the throne of England, and had, from time to time, been the recipient of many royal favors, and, when the civil strife arose, he conscientiously girded on the sword and went forth to fight for his King and Country and his ancient home. In short, he was a Loyalist, and, at the surrender of Newcastle, October 22, 1644, was taken prisoner by the Parliament and Scotch troops. At this period the Parliamentarians were greatly exasperated toward the adherents of King Charles I. Russell, in his Life of Cormwell, says, "the Parliament had already manifested a very determined feeling of animosity against all privileged orders, and were still directing the thunder of their power, not only against his Majesty, whose interests appeared now incompatible with their own, but also against all that class whose wealth and rank were wont to constitute the support of the throne." This spirit began to show itself as early as July, 1643, and continued to increase in intensity until the final overthrow of Charles.

Many estates were confiscated and the owners banished or imprisoned. At the time of his capture, Lawrence held a Captain's commission, and shared the fate of many others who fell into the hands of the enemy. He was deprived of his property, and his estates sequestered by order of Parliament. Deeply injured by the injustice of the Cromwellians, and feeling unable any longer to endure the oppression of the Government, he determined to leave his fatherland; accordingly, after having obtained special permission from Lord Fairfax, Chief Commander of the Parliamentary Army, he bade farewell to the scenes of his early youth—the "dear old home"—now in possession of enemies, and embarked with wife and child for New England to seek a home in the wilderness of America.

Lawrence Wilkinson arrived in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1645. James, (born 1786), Wilkinson's Bible contains the following record:

> "He was Captain under King Charles in the wars with his Parliament, but, during Oliver Cromwell's usurpation, he became exposed to the tyranny of the Government and was obliged to leave his native country."

Upon his arrival in Providence, Lawrence signed the Civil Compact and received a gift of twenty-five acres of land, which was called a "quarter right," and, upon this stood the primeval forest consisting of oak, walnut and pine, which was to be cleared up before the "Staff of Life" could be obtained. Now Commenced his pioneer life. And what a contrast to his life in the Old World! There, every luxury awaited his order, and faithful servants stood ready to do his bidding—here, even the necessities of life could not be had and, by the sweat of the brow, must he earn his subsistence. When cleared, the rich virgin soil yielded bountifully. Corn was pounded in morters, sometimes dug out of a stump. Much of their food was obtained from the rivers and the forests. Fish were abundant, and wild game such as bears, deer, turkeys and partridges, were easily taken. Their food was of the plainest kind—tea and coffee were seldom used previous to 1780. Their clothing was chiefly home-spun. Woolen and cotton mills were not known in New England then. The social intercourse of the early settlers was of the most friendly character. An entire equality prevailed.

The peculiar character of the Government, and the religious principles of Roger Williams, fostered the widest and deepest fellow-feeling and goodwill, and everything was tolerated but sin. They were cheerful, cordial, frank, full of humor, and practiced the broadest charity.

Captain Lawrence Wilkinson, as he was called by his townsmen, was admitted as one of the original "Proprietors of Providence," and, in the laying out of the land and in the drafts of the subsequent divisions on the east and on the west side of the seven mile line, his name constantly appears with the other purchasers of the town. He soon acquired a large real estate, and held a prominent position among his fellow citizens. In 1659, he was elected a member of the Legislature which met at Portsmouth. He subsequently was chosen to fill offices of trust in the infant Colony. He was an active business man, and, though frequently called to serve in a public capacity, he by no means neglected his private affairs. He was greatly interested in the building up of the town, and entered heartily into every enterprise which had for its object the promotion of the Colony. The great principal of soul liberty which characterized Roger Williams found an earnest advocate in him. He lived in his adopted country nearly half a century, and we have no account of his ever returning to his native land. He died in August, 1692.

He was married in England to Susannah Smith, daughter of Christopher and Alice ( ) Smith, who also came to Providence.

Rev. Isreal Wilkinson, in 1869, completed the publication of "Memoirs of the Wilkinson Family," and he quotes from correspondence in England, proving the connection of Lawrence Wilkinson who settled in Providence, R. I., in 1645, with the Lawrence whose Coat-of-Arms is described above. Also, he quotes from the extract of the original grant, which is copied here:

"Being now requested by Lawrence Wilkinson to make search for the ancient coat armor belonging to that name and Family, which I find to be -'Azure a fesse erminois between thre unicorns passant Argant;'- and for that I can fynd noe crest proper, or belonging thereunto, as unto many ancient coats at this day there is wanting, he hath further requested me to confyrme unto him such a one as he may lawfully beare, I have likewise condescended unto and allowed him this crest ensuinge (vide) -'A demy unicorn erazed erminoys standing on a murall crown gules;'-as more plainly appeareth depicted in the margent; all which Armes and Creast. I the said Richard St. George, Norroy doe give, grant, ratify and confyrme unto sayde Lawrence Wilkinson, and to the several descendants of his body forever bearing their due differences."

A few points in this ratification we should especially note:

1 The quaint spelling in those days

2 The request of Lawrence Wilkinson himself to have found the correct Arms belonging to his family-as its reproduction was probably not located in his estate among the family relics—very unusual

3 That he wished a crest—which as you see was not so common in "antient" days. While he could request it, he could not just take it—the King of Arms "condescesded" to allow its use, and "ionfyrmed & ratifyed" it

4 All of his descendants were eligible to its use. This is a much disputed point, and is definitely cleared here—that there is no reason why we should not know about, and enjoy, these pictorial histories of our ancestors

5 The "Differences" are symbols used by the several sons of the family on their father's Coats-of-Arms, to identify them: label (wedge-shaped piece) for 1st son: crescent, 2nd; star 3rd; martlet, 4th, etc., through the 9th

6 This paragraph does not make this clear, but the fact is that Richard St. George is one of the several Kings of Arms whose business is to grant and conform, and record each bearing. The various members of the College of Arms take their names from the sections they cover, and Richard St. George is called "Norroy King of Armes."

From a Wilder book, we gleaned the story of a private burying-ground near Scituate, R. I., the only one of its kind known, where a Wilkinson family buried 100 or more of their Indian servants. There also has been found the grave of Dr. John Wilkinson, a surgeon in General Washington's army, who gave practically all his wealth for the purchase of needed supplies for the Revolutionary cause

Christopher Smith, the father of Susanna, died in Providence, in June 1676, and Alice, his wife died in 1681, both buried in Providence. Their daughter Susanna, wife of Lawrence, died in 1692

There has been some diversity of opinion about the birth of Samuel Wilkinson. An article appeared in the June number, 1865, of the HERALDIC JOURNAL, published in Boston, entitled the "Wilkinson Family and Arms," by Hon. Theodore A. Neal, which states that Lawrence Wilkinson, after "having obtained special permission from Lord Fairfax in 1652, went with his wife and son to New England." From this, it would appear that Samuel was born in England

I Samuel Wilkinson was Justice of the Peace for many years in the infant Colony, and his house was a common resort for young people who desired his official services in the matter of matrimony. He married Plain Wickenden, dau. of Rev. William Wickenden, one of the founders of Providence, R. I., and one of the first to preach in the First Baptist Church built in Rhode Island

III John Wilkinson, b. 2 March 1654, d. 1708, in Providence, R. I., m. April 16, 1689, Deborah Whipple, b. August 1, 1670, dau. of Eleazer and Alice (Angell) Whipple, granddau. of Capt. John Whipple of Rhode Island, who was deputy to Rhode Island General Court, 1666-1677, b. 1617 in England, d. May 16, 1685 in Rhode Island. He came in the second emigration from England, m. 1639 in Dorchester, Mass., Sarah Hutchinson, and had: Eleazer Whipple, b. 1646, d. August 25, 1719, m. ca. 1668, Alice Angell, b. 1649, dau. of Thomas and Alice (Ashton Angell, who came over with Roger Williams in 1636. He was b. in Liverpool, 1618, m. ca. 1644, Alice Ashton, and had: (1) James, b. 1646, m. Abigail Dexter, dau. of Rev. Gregory Dexter; (2) John, b. 1648; (3) Alice, b. 1650, m. 1668, Eleazer Whipple, who had Deborah Whipple, b. August 1, 1670, m. April 16, 1689, John Wilkinson I, of Providence, R. I., d. June 24, 1748

Thomas Angell, above referred to, was one of the first six persons to reach Providence, a lad of nineteen years. He came with Roger Williams, and he was legal heir to the estate of William Angell, of Liverpool, England, amounting to more than $25,000,000

(1) One daughter, an only child, named Hannah

VI Susannah Wilkinson, b. February, 1662, in Providence, the youngest daughter of Lawrence, m. (1)_____Boss, of Rehoboth, Mass., m. (2) James Angell, the son of Major John and grandson of Thomas Angell

II John was born at the homestead of Samuel at "Loquissit" in Providence. He left Rhode Island ca. 1700, m. in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, Mary ( ). They had a daughter born while in New Jersey, and, about 1713, he moved to Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and purchased a large tract of land lying partly in Wrightstown and partly in Warwick township. This is still the "Old Wilkinson Tract."

III William was born in Providence and was the most talented of Samuel's sons. He early united with the Friends, or was a birthright member, and became a public preacher among them. He was a man of more than ordinary ability, and was highly esteemed for his sincerity, integrity and zeal in religion. In 1768, William went to Barbados, on the northern coast of South Am-

An influential branch of the Dexter family has descended from this couple, of which Nathaniel G. B. Dexter, of Pawtucket, Col. J. S. Dexter, of Providence, and others, are at the present representatives

The old Dexter place in Providence is still remembered, but very few, if any, living in that city know that this was the residence of Lawrance Wilkinson, our paternal ancestor. The descent of the property for two or three generations was as follows: Lawrance deeded the property to his son, Josias, in 1691. Josias died in 1692, intestate, and the Town Council took it in charge, adjudged Hannah the lawful heir, appointed trustees, or guardians, and gave it to them in trust until she should arrive of age. She married, and that transferred the property into the Dexter family, and, instead of being the "Old Wilkinson Place," as it was originally, it is the "Old Dexter Place."

I Hulda, the oldest child, was born at the old homestead called Providence. She married when she was more than thirty years of age, Elisha Dillingham, a man of more than ordinary wealth. David had three sons and six daughters. Two of his sons died unmarried. Four of his daughters married and had families. David's wife, Mary, died July 1, 1803, aged ninety-one years and nineteen days. David was a man of considerable note in his native town and held many a public office. He spent the last part of his life in Providence, and was elected Justice of the Peace in that city May, 1771-2-3-4-5, etc., holding the office for a number of years. During the exciting times of the Revolution, he was an active advocate of the rights of the Colonies and, in 1775, he was appointed to a Committee on Printing. This position afforded a favorable opportunity for aiding the cause of Freedom, which did not pass unimproved. The following year, 1776, he was appointed Superintendent of the Press of Providence. The cause of American liberty found ardent and active supporters in the Wilkinson family notwithstanding their pacific principles

IX Israel, m. April 6, 1732, Mary Aldrich, dau. of Moses Aldrich, of Mendon, Mass. Savage says, "Mattithia, b. 10 July 1656, was one of the first settlers at Mendon in 1663," but, whether Moses was a descendant of this man, or a later settler, is not known. They had seven sons and five daughters, viz: George, Robert, Thomas, Caleb, Luke, Moses, Aaron, Abigail, Mary, Lydia, Alice, and Marcy.
